New Russia's Primer.
Our New Dirigible.
Strikes Unwelcome.
Mussolini's New Tone.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

A BOOK PUBLISHED by the Russian government for children of high school age called "New Russia's Primer" published here by Houghton Mifflin tells Russians how stupidly rich America manages her affairs the people suffering when crops are big farmers especially suffering.

The primer quotes a book by an American Stuart Chase called "A Tragedy of Waste" describing a big load of ripe watermelons thrown overboard "to keep up the price" and "thousands of gallons of milk poured into the rivers and creeks of Southern Illinois in 1920 and placards posted on the highways in the Middle West advising farmers to burn corn instead of oil."

OUR LATEST cotton news will give Russians new material for their chapter on American Management.

On Friday the government forecast a cotton crop of 15,584,000 bales and immediately cotton fell $7 a bale below 7 cents a pound.

The crop biggest in 16 years, is lowest in price.

Russians say that in their country such a gigantic crop would mean joy for all the people and clothes shoes stockings etc. for those that need them. After the crop means worry for farmers and a problem for the government.

SATURDAY MRS. HOOVER christening the United States dirigible Akron released from the airship 48 white pigeons one for each state. They flew promptly to their homes as the giant ship rose in the air putting the United States ahead of all other countries in lighter-than-air craft.

THANK HEAVEN FOR ONE SUPREMACY.

Let us also be grateful to those that manage the Goodyear company at Akron O. and made it possible for the government to get such a ship.

The new dirigible 785 feet long carrying 6,500,000 cubic feet of non-inflammable non-explosive helium gas displaces 7,400,000 cubic feet of air. Every dirigible is a submarine immersed in the air ocean in which it operates.

The ship has a lifting capacity of 430,000 pounds 182,000 pounds more than its own weight and travels 84 miles an hour. Such a ship loaded with gas and explosives approaching silently high up in the night could completely wreck any city in the world and destroy every human being in it.

Let us hope that this ship will serve only as a warning to other nations, and do no killing.

A STRIKE at the Hoover Dam important to many western states and general prosperity seems to puzzle those in charge, but should not. It is a government undertaking. Arbitration should settle any question. One complaint is that mechanical drills instead of hand drills are used in tunneling. Days for objecting to perfected machinery have gone by.

The French, when the government was involved in a railroad strike, lost no time. The government drafted the strikers into the army and said go to work or be shot for mutiny. They went to work.

French methods would not suit the United States, but no union, no I. W. W. or group of other workers should be allowed to check the Hoover Dam construction. Labor questions should be settled by arbitration, and no time lost.

EUROPE NOTICES the peaceful tone of Mussolini's recent speeches. He made enough speeches of the other kind to make Europe realize that Italy is an independent nation. Now he reaches out a friendly hand, going to Germany to visit Chancellor Bruening.

Mussolini announces that Italy will buy German coal, good news for Germany, bad news for Britain. Italians have not forgotten the price they paid for coal during the war, or the difficulty with which they were able to get ANY coal.

TIMES AND CRIME have changed. Bill Sykes with his heavy club, bulldog and his pitifully small earnings, would not recognize his fellows of the criminal world today.

New York's police have arrested a criminal whose records include nine months in college, nine months in jail and robbery of many stores which he visited in a $15,000 foreign-made automobile.

He lived at a fashionable hotel, kept horses for riding in the park. In his apartment, the gentleman had many suits of clothes, 15 pairs of shoes.

Yet he is a beggar compared to the really successful criminals of today, whose takings run into millions, and whose gifts to public officials, from judges down to prohibition agents, make the salaries of those officials seem small.

NEAR AMARILLO, Tex., scientists of Michigan University have dug up the complete coat of armor of a giant phytosaur, a crocodile-shaped creature, weighing as much as an elephant, that had its day in the Triassiac Age, 50,000,000 years ago.

Nature, evolution, and the powers that control us, are never in a hurry. The ancient monsters have gone. Troubles that disturb us will go gradually. What we shall look like, after evolution finishes its work with us and we become a race with no harder work than to push a button, we cannot guess.

We probably shall look as little like men of today as the North Sea whale looks like a small tree shrew from which it descends.

FEARS GROW FOR SAFETY OF CRAMER

Bad weather, mystery, homesickness, daring, embarrassment, accident—all these characterize the feats of those who are cutting capers along the world's airways.

The Lindberghs were weather bound at Point Barrow.

Parker Cramer, American airman, was overdue in Copenhagen on a flight across the Arctic, and fears for his safety are growing.

Russell Boardman and John Polando landed at Marseilles, France, after a flight from Istanbul on the way home from their world's record-breaking dash across the Atlantic to Turkey.

Wolfgang Von Gronau, German master of the amphibian, dropped into Reykjavik, Iceland, on an unheralded flight across the North Atlantic to America, something he's done before.

Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., were still answering questions in Tokio as to why they photographed Japanese fortifications on their flight from Siberia.

The German seaplane DO-X chafed at its moorings in Para, Brazil, because a broken crankcase in one motor had delayed its maiden visit to America via South American ports.

JUNE WORTH, 16 . . . HER AUTO ALMOST HIT TWO POLICE

Miss Worth, featured in a Pittsburgh stage show last week, today at Columbus, O., held for juvenile authorities on an intoxication charge and her escort, Joe Novello, 32, featured in the same show, in jail on a charge of contributing to a minor's delinquency. The auto, police say, narrowly missed running down two policemen.

DRIVERS HELD FOR CRASH

James Hoover, 25, of 500½ North Highland avenue, suffered a probable skull fracture today when the truck he was driving, owned by the Highland Cleaning and Repairing Company, collided with another car at Hampton and Mellon streets and turned over on its side.

Walter Mueller, of Blawnox, driver of the other car, took Hoover to the Pittsburgh Hospital. Charges of reckless driving were preferred against both drivers at the East End Police Station.

GIRL HOLDS UP AUTO DRIVER

Instead of seeing the sights of New York today, Josephine Houser, 15, of 251 East Third avenue, Homestead, a student in Homestead High School was in custody of Juvenile Court, her confidence in detective story tactics shaken.

She signaled Ellis Gold, 19, to take her into his machine last night on Brown's Hill, the latter told police. A moment later, according to his story, she pushed a revolver against his side with the remark:

"Take me to New York and have me there by 5 o'clock tomorrow morning."

Gold needed money for gasoline, he told her. She handed over the revolver and told him to hold up someone to get money for the gas, saying:

"I've still got a gun in my purse so don't try to fool me."

Gold drove to Lawrenceville, left the car and came back with Patrolman Cyril Klockgether. The girl had no other gun. She said she got her idea from a detective story.

Blames Racketeering in County on Failure of District Attorney to Act

Ralph H. Smith, state deputy attorney general, today made the long expected announcement of his candidacy for District Attorney, opposing Andrew T. Park, incumbent and Republican organization choice. A short time later he formally filed his nominating petitions.

Smith is a co-leader with County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern in a movement to put an "Independent" ticket in the Republican primary election September 15.

The "Independents" are expected to carry McGovern as their only candidate for County Commissioner, and Smith for District Attorney, at the head of a ticket including some of former State Senator Max G. Leslie's proteges and others opposed to Mayor Charles H. Kline and his administration.

SMITH HITS RACKET

Smith's announcement struck vigorously at political tie-ups which he blamed for the rule of the gangster and the racketeer in Allegheny County. In one place it read:

"What the average man knows the District Attorney should be able to discover.

"The knowledge thus acquired should result in positive action.

"Not once has the present District Attorney effectively

U. S. Steel Orders Drop 74,5077 Tons

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP.)—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation showed a decrease of 74,507 tons in July to a total of 3,404,816 tons as of July 31. In June a decrease of 141,120 tons was reported.

The corporation's operations in July were at the lowest rate of the year, averaging about 32 per cent of capacity, and the management endeavored to keep production and business as close as possible to new orders.

THREE-WAY BATTLE IN COUNTY

For Mayor's Action May Bring Coyne-Mansfield Drive Against Armstrong

The already turbulent waters of Allegheny County's political sea swirled under a new tempest today as the prospect of a third ticket, to be entered in the Republican primaries, September 15, was evidenced in the circulation of nominating papers for E. V. Babcock for County Commissioner, an office he now holds and for which he has repeatedly said he would not be a candidate.

Babcock's petitions, discovered today after being passed about for signatures secretly for some time, are taken to mean he will be the running mate of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong on the Republican "organization" ticket.

COYNE SHELVED

This would necessitate the shelving of State Senator James J. Coyne as an organization candidate for Commissioner, a move which certain members of the Armstrong faction have been demanding with great vigor.

There was considerable belief, however, that the Babcock move was little more than a gesture and that when it was all over Armstrong and Coyne would be found with the "organization" support.

Simultaneously with the discovery of the Babcock petitions, came a report, with some substantiation in political circles, that Coyne would team with State Senator W. D. Mansfield as candidates for the majority posts on the County Commissioners' board, probably as the nucleus of the supposed third ticket.

Mansfield, at one time was touted as the running mate of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, some supporters of former State Senator Max G. Leslie, of the old-line organization, and other foes of Mayor Charles H. Kline.

STRATEGIC MOVE

Babcock was expected to file his nominating papers this afternoon. Four o'clock today is the latest such action can be taken.

If he does so, it will be regarded as an outright admission that the "Organization" had been unable to gather its forces behind the Armstrong-Coyne combination.

Further complicating affairs was the announcement yesterday that Burgess John J. Cavanaugh, an ardent Armstrong supporter, would file for County Commissioner today, and the discovery that Dr. F. H. Frederick, North Side leader of the Kline forces but also a strong friend of Armstrong today had filed petitions to become a candidate for County Treasurer.

CAVANAUGH PUZZLE

Cavanaugh's action was set down as some bit of Armstrong's strategy, with its ultimate motive

Pittsburgh Actress Loses $500,000 Gems in Taxi

MILAN, Aug. 10.—(INS.)—Loss in a taxicab of a jewel case containing $500,000 in gems was reported to police today by Mrs. Anna Coleman, of New York, former Pittsburgh actress. She told police they were in a bag which she forgot in alighting from the cab.

Mrs. Coleman, well known on the American stage as Ann Murdock, was reported to be in Milan for the purpose of wedding Nobile Leone Coloni, member of a prominent Italian family. She has been twice wed and divorced.

Friends here said that the former actress possessed jewels valued at $1,000,000.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP.)—Frank Brusza, 22, was rewarded today with a $2,500 check by an insurance company in recognition of his honesty in turning over last Tuesday to the police a pearl necklace and other jewels valued at $200,000 which he found after they had been left in his taxicab by Mrs. R. S. Reynolds Hitt, of Washington.

The young driver, who had been without regular employment until recently, stated that the money would make medical aid possible for his mother and sister, both invalids.

Hoover Works on Birthday, 57 Candles on Cake

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(INS.)—President Hoover returned to the White House today one year older. Today is the fifty-seventh anniversary of his birth and he indicated that he will observe the occasion by staying at his desk as usual.

If Mrs. Hoover has some sort of a surprise party to stage for her husband she had not let it be known. Last year she held such a party at their Rapidan (Va.) camp, and baskets of trinkets were given to Mr. Hoover and his guests.

It is probable that Mrs. Hoover will invite her 8 street neighbors to the White House tonight for dinner and an informal birthday gathering.

Any way one fact was learned—the White House cook has baked a good-sized birthday cake.

The President spent the week-end at his mountain camp on the Rapidan, where his Filipino mess-boys, learning Mr. Hoover would not spend his birthday at the camp as he has every other one since he became President, gave him another large cake with 57 candles last night.

WICKERSHAM REPORT EXPOSES POLICE TORTURE METHODS

THIRD DEGREE BRUTALITY SCORED

Board Raps 'Lawlessness' In Law Enforcement and Cites Pittsburgh Cases

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 —(AP.) A tale of systematized police brutality spreading over half the nation, a 10 year record of illegal law enforcement by barbarous "third degree" methods, was unfolded today by the Wickersham Commission.

Asserting its duty was to lay the naked ugly facts before the public, the commission crammed into a single weighty volume on "lawlessness in law enforcement" more than five score pages of statutes of extorted confessions.

It urged upon President Hoover new legislation, or a constitutional amendment if necessary, to abolish conduct so violative of the fundamental principles of constitutional liberty.

BRUTALITIES CITED

It cited the Leopold-Loeb case in which an innocent Negro teacher was beaten into confession as having focused attention upon the third degree.

It turned to the Shank case of Ohio as showing the unbelievable reactions to a prosecutor who struck the university professor on the jaw to obtain a confession.

One case however the commission refused to discuss, awaiting finally a review of the Mooney-Billings case, but here decided against because of inability to examine witnesses and because a pardon for one of the men accused of the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing now under consideration.

In addition to its assault upon the third degree, the report condemned as too prevalent cases of suppression, influence in prosecutions by district attorneys and judges.

Pittsburgh 'Third Degree' Methods Scored in Report

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP.)—Third degree questioning and illegal detention were cited today to the Wickersham Commission as evidences of lawlessness in law enforcement in Pennsylvania.

A detailed study of Philadelphia included in the commission's report to President Hoover said brutality had practically vanished but that illegal detention was carried to the extreme. The third degree was still used by police officials in other sections of the state.

The commission cited studies made by Prof. W. T. Root, Jr., of the University of Pittsburgh, to show that third degree methods are used in Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania cities. A report in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph August 27, 1927, was referred to by the commission. It reported that an action for $50,000 had been instituted by John Cook, a Negro, against Dr. Sutherland and Dr. Terwilleger. Cook had been acquitted of a criminal charge and claimed he was given the third degree by being strapped to the cooling board in the morgue and placed between the bodies of two victims. He claimed pins were run under his nails and into his body.

STAR PLEDGES TO PAY DEBTS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 10 —(INS.)— Announcing that henceforth she would support no one but herself, Mary Nolan, screen and stage actress, informed her creditors today that she would repay every penny I owe.

Miss Nolan, who recently went bankrupt on arriving here from New York, stated she owed only $52,000 and not $93,000, as had been reported.

She further explained that she would not have gone bankrupt had she not undertaken to support her sister with two children, whose husband was unemployed, and a brother.

Miss Nolan said she would not ask her husband, Wallace I. Marrery, Jr., a New York broker, to assist her in paying her debts.

Smith Out for District Attorney

In his speech, paraphrasing Smith said he has no quarrel with Park and would not slander "in personality or party mudslinging."

His announcement was believed to be the first step in the announcement of the complete Independent slate although there was a feeling in some political circles that such a ticket will be only a partial one, leaving certain offices vacant.

Smith's statement, in full, follows:

"I am a candidate for the office of District Attorney.

HAS NO QUARREL

"I have no quarrel with Mr. Park personally and shall not, therefore, at any time during the campaign indulge in personalities nor 'mud slinging.' Such comment directed toward the present District Attorney as it shall be necessary to make in discussing the issues shall be limited to his conduct and policies in the discharge of his official duties and shall be kept strictly within the confines of established fact.

"The minimum requirements of public interest demand the prompt and efficient disposal of public business by a staff of capable assistants devoted to enforcement of the law and administration of the office with vigor and impartiality. The success of the District Attorney is largely determined, however, by the efficiency of the county detective bureau which should be, in fact as well as in theory, a group of trained investigators upon whom daily devolve duties requiring special training and skill which is entirely inconsistent with a life largely spent in political activity.

"The District Attorney is more than 'lawyer for the Commonwealth.' He should be the chief enforcement official of the county. His attitude is reflected in the conduct of every police officer. When the full weight and influence of his office are thrown in the scales against the criminal, the gangster and the petty political racketeer, the policeman takes new courage and the public benefits.

RACKETS IN COUNTY

"There are rackets in Allegheny County. Gambling, 'slot machines,' 'numbers,' bootlegging and other forms of organized crimes are thriving here in a period of depression that has seriously affected every honest man and every legitimate business enterprise. The newspapers carry the story daily. Men are put on the spot and human life is held cheap.

"What the average man knows the District Attorney through his county detectives should be able to discover. The knowledge thus acquired should result in positive action. Not once has the present District Attorney effectively taken the initiative against the forces of organized crime.

"There is no room in Allegheny County for the gangster and the racketeer. They owe their very existence to political 'tie ins' and alliances which continue men in office whose avowed policy is one of 'doing nothing,' who place political expediences above public welfare, who believe the perpetuation of the 'organization' is paramount to public service and who are content to remain silent and dormant in face of conditions that challenge the foundations of society.

"The District Attorney of a large urban community such as Allegheny County, who ignores the larger social and community obligations imposed upon him by the very nature of his office but who is satisfied to discharge the technical duties of the office only, fails entirely.

"The people look to the District Attorney for leadership. They expect him to take the initiative and to use all the weight and influence of his powerful office in their interest, regardless of the dictates of petty politics.

"To that concept of the office I dedicate by candidacy fully determined to keep the faith."

THERE is no magic, no wizardry in Donahoe's Buttermilk. It cannot work miracles nor can it hope to accomplish the impossible.

BLAME FOR VICE IN CITY LAID TO KLINE

Brandon, Former Magistrate, Declares Saftey Director Has List of Violators

The key to a city-wide vice cleanup is contained in a list of vice spots in the desk drawer of Director James M Clark, of the Department of Public Safety, according to former Magistrate A D Brandon of Mora's Court.

Magistrate Brandon, H Kline would like to see the cleanup, of course, Brandon says. I would like to believe it's true that Director Clark has the complete vice list. But I don't believe it.

Reports to Brandon's chambers, Brandon says, Director Clark said:

Brandon must have gone crazy or else he is a terrible liar to make such charges against me. I have no such list and if I did it wouldn't be in my drawer but would be given to lieutenants for action.

Brandon's statements were made in a speech at the Knox-Mellon Republican Club in Oakland, where the candidate for Coroner introduced the speaker. He said:

KLINE NAMED

Vice conditions couldn't last a day in Pittsburgh without the consent and approval of the higher ups, even to and including Mayor Charles H. Kline.

If Kline wanted to clean up all he'd have to do would be to call in Clark, and say to him:

"Director, get that list of Pittsburgh speakeasies and disorderly houses from your desk drawer. Call in your officers and lieutenants. Tell them to give me their resignations, and then to go out and clean up those spots. If their districts are not cleaned up in a reasonable time, I'll file their resignations."

The police Brandon says can help but know where the illegal activities are going on. But a policeman on the beat, the man who can be ordered to do it, doesn't know from his superior officers.

He said:

"I never knew of a single man with the possible exception of traffic officers, to be promoted in the Pittsburgh Police Department for efficiency.

"Look at James J. McInerney. Jim captured the night riders, Pittsburgh's worst gang, single handed. Did he get promoted? He did not. Some time later he was dropped from the force.

"Peter Connors, with more criminal captures to his credit than any other Pittsburgh policeman, was demoted several times and finally fired a year before he'd have been eligible for pension.

Brandon praised the efforts of William Randolph Hearst to [illegible] the people to [illegible] the crime wave in Pittsburgh, he said:

"Mr. Hearst is right. We must clean up the police and politics. Most of all, however, we must correct the legal technicalities of court procedure which favor the criminal."

Bavarian Wine Named After Hoover

STRASBOURG, Aug. 10 (INS)—President Hoover can boast of being the first chief of state in history to give his name to a famous Rhine wine.

Hoover Wine, as the latest vintage given to the 1931 crops in the Bavarian province of Alsace-Lorraine, made its debut in Strasbourg's Palace Hotel on Aug. 1, 1931. Over Hard Times, etc. Last year's crop, from the same cellars, were called Brockenfels Wines, to mark the French withdrawal from the Rhineland.

CAVALRY REVIEW

In the afternoon, Lieut. Gen. E. C. Shannon brought his brigade of National Guard cavalry over from nearby Colebrook and put them through a snappy review.

The 103rd Cavalry Band essayed a concert for the veterans, but it soon turned into a singing fest with the band playing everything from "Tipperary" to "Pack Up Your Troubles" and the boys joining in.

Clerk of Courts R. J. Topley was the guest Sunday of Col. Samuel D. Porter at division headquarters.

Maj. Shenkel called a meeting of the Pittsburgh delegation and thanked them for their splendid co-operation in making the reunion a success.

A petition was drawn up and signed by more than 200 Pittsburghers asking that they be granted a charter for a local post of the Society of the 28th Division. It was the first charter applied for.

Attorney George W. Cooper, Pittsburgh, was congratulated by many of his new book, the History of the Second Battalion of the 111th Infantry.

SPANISH WAR VETS MEET

Sessions of the sixth annual reunion and convention of the Survivors Association, 11th Regiment, United States Volunteer Cavalry, which saw service in the Philippines from 1899 to 1901, opened today in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Many former buddies who hadn't seen each other since the regiment disbanded in 1901, were reunited today. G. W. Weckbecker, of Pittsburgh, and National Vice Commander William C. Witforth, of Toledo, O., both of Troop F, greeted each other for the first time since they were mustered out.

Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the delegates this morning. Roll call was held. The morning session of the Ladies Auxiliary was conducted by Mrs. Ida Huastman, of Clarksburg, W. Va., president.

Comrades and their ladies were to visit the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company at East Pittsburgh this afternoon, and to attend a corn roast at the home of Thomas J. Weidner, Forest Hills, Troop D committeeman.

Keystone Vets' Glory Claimed By Kansas

PITTSBURG, Kan., Aug. 10 (AP)—Kansas World War veterans of the 35th Division are irritated over the discovery in Varennes, France, of a monument praising Pennsylvania troops of the 28th Division for the capture of the town from the Germans.

Fred Henney, president of the 35th Division Association and a sergeant in the 137th Infantry, says Kansas troops captured the town, and that Pennsylvania troops occupied the city after the Kansas troops moved on in the Argonne battle.

The Kansas veterans will file a protest at their reunion here next month.

Now $6.50

Modettes have always represented outstanding footwear value at their price. At the new price, this feature is further emphasized. The source, the workmanship, the standard of quality remain the same. The new price is the result of lower costs and savings resulting from increased production, both of which we are promptly passing on to our customers.

Hudson Seal

The Great Favorite In the August Sale

$175

Every August we sell more Hudson Seal coats than those of any other fur, last year we broke all records for them, and in this year's sale, up to date, they are going at their usual pace. And while this price is considerably lower than our lowest price last year, there is more than that to the story—here are the reasons:

Our coats are of NEW skins, beautiful, lustrous, supple.

They have the style lines and tailoring of higher-priced coats.

There are six models for choice.

They can be had in all regular women's and misses' sizes, half sizes for short women, and in junior misses' sizes.

Fur-Trimmed Coats

$55 — Same Grade Last Year, $75 to $85

$75 — Same Grade Last Year, $100 to $135

Yes, this is hot weather to try on fall and winter coats, but isn't it better to perspire a little more now than to pay more for your coat later on? And while no one can concisely predict, we know that even by making a wide allowance of difference between last year's and this year's price levels, these qualities are bound to be higher in regular season; for only our special efforts have produced these values.

See them tomorrow in the Regular-size and Small Women's Sections, the Misses' and Junior Misses' Sections.

A $10 deposit on $55 coats, and $15 on $75 coats, will hold selections until October 1st.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

I STROLLED along Broadway last night and wondered what I would write for today. Something new, I thought, would be mightily appreciated by you as well as by me. But the ideas refused to come. Ideas are funny that way. Of course I could write about heart-broken chorus girls. Or starving actors. Or the ex-convict who was never given a chance to go straight.

But all this is the same old stuff. Something new was what I wanted. One incident. One idea. Something to pop into my head, only to fade out again. Somehow the old beat seemed to have gone out of me. It's a terrible confession to make, but I felt that under the circumstances the best place for me was to bed.

Suddenly came the thought. I had been looking for. I would enter. I decided the best speakeasy to which I could repair. Where one finds typical New York scenes and characters. Any where one finds characters one will always find stories. Before I determined to collar the first character that I would meet. He would tell me a story and I would have my column.

The first speakeasy I struck was a new one on West Fifty-sixth street. I knew Hatch with the proprietor and walked him well.

Good luck to you, I said, and material aplenty for your little saloon.

He looked at me strangely, puzzled for a moment, then said: "Say, aren't you the guy that writes for the Mirror?"

I admitted that I was the same man who stood behind the free lunch counter.

There's a great character for you, Mark, I said. That fellow Murphy. A great character to write about. Now he's serving the customers in the saloon.

I nodded knowingly.

"Same old story. I sighed and settled down and ordered Scotch like a man who had a million dollars.

The proprietor grinned.

"Say, with sympathy," he said, "you're not more than half of us put together. He comes in work in his own car and owns a couple of apartment houses over in Jersey.

Get him to tell you his story. You'll probably get a couple of columns.

• • •

I walked over to the Murphy table and sized up the man. He had the kindly face of a successful business man. About fifty-five. Gray hair. Clean-shaven. Well dressed. He looked like a man who had been successful in life. He looked like a man who had the world by the tail.

I looked at him. His derby apron hung loosely from his frame. A soft smile played over his face.

But why I mused are you smoking cigars and serving food in a joint like this. What makes you work when you have plenty of money. And what do you stay up all night when you might be a peep in your own home.

Murphy smiled indulgently.

There's nothing mysterious about it, he said. I simply suffer from insomnia. I had to get some sort of light work and this is about all there is. Here I am. And I'm as happy as I can be.

I was on the stage for a total of 30 years and I'm sixty before the best audiences in the world. Take a look at this cigarette. And this one. And this.

Now of course that isn't exactly what I used to be. But it's still good enough to beat out these youngsters around here. They sing songs about daddies who wanna and hot lips and things and the most they ever get is a dollar from a party.

But I stick to me old trade here. My Wild Irish Rose. My Heart's Delight. The Stars of the Rose. Little Tommy Murphy. And lots of others. For every dollar that the young fellows earn I get five. So I guess the old songs are still the best.

He stopped. His story seemed to be over. But I was not satisfied.

Joe, I asked, you seem to be a happy character. But doesn't your heart hurt sometimes? You sang for many years before huge audiences in large theaters. How does it feel to face four small, precarious drinks instead of a cheering crowd?

He looked at me. The smile was still on his face.

I can't show it every night, he said softly, and make believe.

• • •

His story was over. So I turned toward the door, picked my way through the patrons and had almost reached the exit when I stumbled over a man who was sprawled over a table. He was crying bitterly.

Under ordinary circumstances I welcome crying drunks with the same feeling with which I would greet a leper. But this man was different. His clothes were expertly tailored. A handsome carved cane rested beside him. And what is most important in cases of this kind he was crying on no one's shoulder.

Again I called the boss to my assistance. And he told me the story of this man, a story that has many parallels all over the world.

All I know about him, said the proprietor, is that he's a New York boy, who lost his left leg while in the aviation corps during the war. He married a girl about three years ago, but I guess he's lost her now.

He's been here in exactly that condition for the last four nights. We've had to chuck him out when dawn rolls around.

Too bad. Looks like a nice fellow and never complains about the booze. Doesn't seem to care about anything. Just lays around that way and cries. Too bad.

I nodded. The proprietor went back behind the bar. And I walked over to the man who was crying.

Anything I can do pal. I was forward enough to ask.

The man heavy-eyed and sorrowful, raised his head. He looked at me as if in a stupor.

"I love her so," he murmured drunkenly, "I told her so. I told her so. And she laughed. She said I was a silly cripple.

And he's been dropped again.

So you see, instead of one story I found two. Just two little bits of life discovered in a speakeasy in the space of 20 minutes.

Simple life columning . . . isn't it?

70,000 Imperiled As Gas Covers Belgian Town

BRUSSELS, Aug. 10. (AP.)—For three hours yesterday the danger of death by gas poisoning hung over the 70,000 inhabitants of the Brussels suburb Molenbeek. Prompt action by firemen and police only averted a disaster.

While residents of the city slept, the gas pressure, by some unexplained accident, went so low that all lights in streets and houses went out. Then almost as suddenly, the pressure rose again and gas rushed from thousands of unlit jets.

Every available policeman and fireman rushed through the streets, sounding warnings and turning off street jets.

Solas' revolver and Williams' bankbook were taken by the highwaymen, who dragged them beneath the Clairton Bridge where they were tied up. The Negroes escaped.

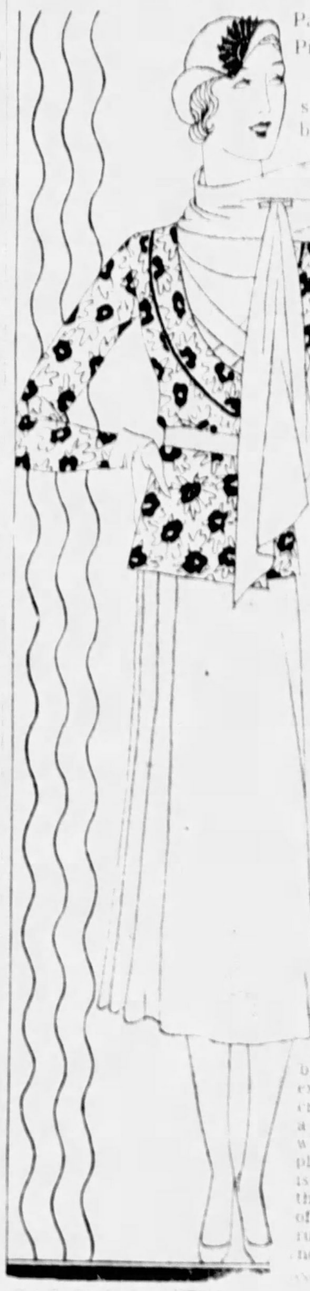
NEWEST MODE IN CHIC ENSEMBLES

Sketched in Paris



Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 10.—The ensemble has learned to dissemble. We had become so used to—and therefore weary of—the ensemble with its long coat of exactly the same color and material as the accompanying frock, that we declared the ensemble null and void. But the designers, knowing that women still retained a hankering for a most charming, if done to death, fashion, have devised some new and very subtle variations of the ensemble.

SO CLEVERLY do they link coat and frock that even though the material and color be different, it is none the less an ensemble, and not just a frock with a jacket. Sometimes the coat has a belt or perhaps a scarf of the material of the frock, and that is quite enough to carry out the ensemble motif. Sometimes the coat is a print, the dominant color of the design being the color of the frock. Or perchance this idea is reversed. It is an excellent way of combining a printed fabric with a plain one.

SHOWN TODAY is one of the season's most subtle and pleasing ensembles. It is by Irene Dana, who uses prints excellently. The frock is of navy crepe marocain and over it goes a little coat of printed navy and white matocain, belted in the plain blue of the frock. The scarf is of the plain blue faced with the printed fabric. Inset bands of the crepe cross the bodice and run down the side of the skirt, ending in unpressed folds.

HUDSON SEAL COATS

during this annual special August selling

There isn't the slightest doubt that this is the finest value in a Hudson Seal coat in many, many years. Designed by our own staff, and made in our own workrooms.

The coats are entirely new in fashion . . . . youthful, becoming and most practical. Slightly longer than last year's coats, with just a suggestion of a flare. There are two models, one having a smart tuxedo collar, and the other a graceful long collar which forms a flattering frame for one's face. Cuffs reach quite to the elbow, making a most effective sleeve.

Practical Daytime Frock

Pattern 2183

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Daily Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Inverted pleats stitched down to below the topline and then released make the skirt of this frock becomingly slim in effect. The bodice has a deep yoke that forms little cap sleeves and is joined on in a scalloped line in the front and a straight line in the back, a detail that gives the frock an attractively trimmed look without the aid of trimming, especially when contrasting fabrics are used. Plain and printed linen or cotton shantung, cotton or flat crepe could all be used effectively for this model.

Obtainable only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2¼ yards of 39-inch material and ⅞ of a yard 36-inch contrasting. Yardage for every size and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

EXTEND SEASON ON PHEASANTS

The abundance of pheasants in Pennsylvania will permit a 30-day hunting period next fall, two weeks more than last year, while the limit for quail will be increased, Ross Leffler, state game commission head, announced today.

Quail will be hunted from November 1 to November 15 only, because of the heavy toll claimed by last summer's drought.

There will be no open season this year for Hungarian partridges. Wild turkey season will be from November 1 to 15, ruffed grouse, 12 days instead of last year's eight days, with the bag limit reduced to two and the season to 12.

Wild rabbit and hare season will be from November 1 to 30.

BOY HELD IN AX KILLING OF GIRL

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 (AP).—A game of "guillotine" at a gay birthday party of young people early Sunday had a tragic sequel in magistrate's court, when 21-year-old Harold Finn held on a technical charge of manslaughter for the death of Alfsind Iverson, also 21.

The game of "guillotine" was suggested at the party. Miss Iverson bent her head in the manner of Marie Antoinette. Finn played the executioner.

He swung an axe. The handle came off. The head of the axe struck Miss Iverson at the base of the skull. Physicians pronounced her dead at a nearby hospital.

Young Finn collapsed, three times while being questioned by police.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10 (AP).—The policy of Italian Fascism in claiming the child as the absolute property of the state was attacked here last night in an address by Bishop Joseph J. Rummel, of Omaha, before the national convention of the Third Order of St. Francis.

Bishop Rummel said the policy marked a revival of one of the worst forms of paganism.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Has Your Daughter Suddenly Become 'Boy Crazy?'

If your daughter has become "boy crazy" how are you feeling about it and what are you doing.

Yesterday she was sulky and a baby, pouting with her lower lip and begging you to let her go to the movies.

And today she is all of a flutter and is busy dumping rice, blushing at the telephone rings, sitting moodily at the window for endless hours forgetting the errands you've given her to do. Or perhaps she is in tempestuous tempers one minute and weeping the next.

THINK BACK

If so, can't you think back to the time when you were 15 or 16 and had your first real full-dress affair—maybe an invitation for the prom party. Are you remembering that boy's crassness, comes to every normal girl, that he more or less stopped that spring soft and blossom and that it would be a tragedy if he were stopped.

Are you remembering that and standing by her in this new amazing thing with Mother comradeship even though there is a little laugh in your throat at the silliness of it all and a frightened pity in your heart at the danger.

Or are you doing as Kitty's mother is doing.

Throwing a fit every time she looks at a lad.

Thinking evil every time you come upon some unexpected situation.

Dearest Sally

Being one of your steady readers I've decided to bring my problem to you. I can't talk to my mother. She would only get mad. She is mad now. That is part of the trouble.

Yes, it's another mushy love affair. But anyway here goes. I am 16 and have lately been introduced to a certain boy I have always wanted to meet. Well we have both fallen in love and fallen hard.

MOTHER ANGERED

"I saw him nearly every night for a week until three weeks ago. I thought I would go to his girl friend's house. I was walking down the hill when who should jump off the street car but John. Back he came. He'd spoiled me a look of. Well he explained. I stopped for a few minutes to chat. When along comes mother.

Go into Bessy's house at once. Of course home was what she said and it's before her mother I'm afraid of. Then she was sweet. I'm to make the most of Sunday afternoons. Mother's protection. Is it death?

I'm sorry to make the most of Sunday afternoons. Mother's protection. Is it death?

KITTY

How about it mother? Is that the way you treat your daughter's friends? Aren't you being unnecessarily protective in your desire?

I'm sorry to make the most of Sunday afternoons. Mother's protection. Is it death?

TIME OF NEED

She needs you now as she never needed you before. She doesn't think she needs you and she doubtless would scoff at the suggestion with exasperating scorn, but she does. She needs you desperately.

Don't you know what to do? Don't you know what to say? Of course you do. Don't you know what to say? Of course you do. Don't you know what to say? Of course you do.

You want to keep her a little girl. You want to keep the Atlantic a little puddle. You want back nature. You want back nature.

She's bound to fall in love that girl. She's bound to fall in love and it's not for you to help her. She'll love and feel confident.

Don't you remember the stirs in your breast as you walked down the street? She will have them. She will have them. She will have them

Actor Tired of Type Parts Terminates Contract By Mutual Consent

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 10.

It's easier for a leopard to change its spots than for an actor to get out of his type.

Monroe Owsley, who came out here to play Ann Harding's brother in "Holiday," is about ready to call it quits. Some time back he finally won a sympathetic lead opposite Joan Crawford in "This Modern Age." Now, in the retakes, he will finish up as the heavy.

"I'm tired of being the society playboy with a glass in my hand," complains Owsley.

And he evidently means it, for his Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract is being dissolved by mutual consent.

Monroe Owsley

The young actor will go to San Francisco for a vacation and then return for one more try at Hollywood. If the kind of roles he wants is not forthcoming, he declares he will return to the stage.

Owsley created the role of Ned in the Broadway production of "Holiday." He played a similar role in Gloria Swanson's "Indiscreet." His only picture in six months at M-G-M has been "This Modern Age."

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Enright today begins a three-day showing of "A Free Soul," which features Norma Shearer, Lionel Barrymore, Leslie Howard and Clark Gable. In a recent first-run presentation of the film downtown, audiences were impressed especially with the excellent work of Mr. Barrymore.

Tonight and for the remainder of the week Capt. Menke's players on the show boat Golden Rod, at Montrose, will give the first performance of the lacrymose melodrama, "East Lynne," that has been given in this vicinity in many years. While the play actors may make you cry in the drama, Vic Faust, the bell ringer, and others will dry your tears between the acts.

It is said to have a weekly salary list of $25,000, the principals including Will Mahoney, Lillian Roth, William Demarest, Mitchell and Durant, three Forman Sisters and three Slate Brothers. It is destined for the new Earl Carroll Theater in New York, which has a seating capacity of 3,000.

Last of Love Mart Defendants Pays Fine

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 10.—(AP)—John P. Mills, Los Angeles real estate broker and a defendant in the so-called Hollywood "call girl" bazaar case, was fined $1,000 in Superior Court Saturday.

Alexander Pantages, theater magnate, Jesse H. Steele, wealthy San Diego real estate man, and Wallace Ingraham and Oliver Day, alleged operators of the bazaar, were the other defendants. The jury returned their trial and charges against the four were dismissed. Mills, who turned state's evidence, paid the fine.

Two Pictures In Harris

"Laugh and Get Rich" and "Alias the Bad Man" are the titles of a double-feature program now showing at the Harris. Edna May Oliver, Dorothy Lee and Hugh Herbert are prominent in the first named picture while Ken Maynard is the star of the second.

"Fun in a Boarding House" might also be the title of "Laugh and Get Rich," since it is a comic story of characters who live in a rooming house and of one and of all in which the family fortune is sunk—and the family almost. Russell Gleason and John Harron help Miss Lee to generate the love interest.

THE CRITICS WROTE THIS AD

Thank You, MR. COHEN

Post-Gazette—

"The news about M. Chevalier's 'Smiling Lieutenant' is too good to keep. The jolly Frenchman is at the top of his form here in the smartest entertainment of the summer. Lubitsch the Old Master, simply outdoes himself. It is the perfect cinematic cocktail."

Thank You, MR. KRUG

Pittsburgh Press—

"The Smiling Lieutenant' is the last word in smart talking screen entertainment. It is Maurice Chevalier's supreme film achievement."

"The new censor board has wisely kept its hands off, passing the picture as it should have been passed, a fact that will get it on the '10 Best' list of Pennsylvania critics."

AUTO CLUB PLANS COURT FIGHT ON ROAD BARRIER

FALLSTON HILL CURVE STILL BLOCKED

Borough Firm in Demand For Safeguards; High Curb Urged as Remedy

L. L. Roth, of the Pittsburgh eMtor Club, today was completing preparations to apply for an injunction for the removal of the barrier erected by Fallston Borough on the state highway at the foot og Fallston Hill, between Beaver and Beaver Falls. Roth went to Beaver after no action was forthcoming either from the State Highway Patrol or the Highway Department at Harrisburg. He and Attorney A. A. Bluestone counsel of the club, also visited the scene Saturday, when they announced they would give the Highway Department until today to act to open the roadway.

Meanwhile the week-end guard of volunteer firemen was removed.

State highway patrolmen who have been on duty directing motorists over a detour also have been withdrawn. Borough officials are still determined that something must be done to relieve the present so-called dangerous curve at the foot of the long grade.

The highway patrolmen were withdrawn yesterday pending word from the state Highway Department in Harrisburg. The Beaver Falls detachment wired Harrisburg Saturday for instructions.

Roth states that the danger could be eliminated very easily by the erection of an extra high guard curb at the curve.

Democrats Fooled When Gum Drops Change to Cigars

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Most important news from the White House last week was that President Hoover is fond of gumdrops.

Two days later Mr. Hoover denied that he was fond of gumdrops.

The Democratic campaign committee got hold of the information and tried to twist it into some form of international treachery.

The Republicans rallied to the veto-scarred banner and denounced the rumor before it became an indictment.

Investigation indicated that it wasn't a package of gumdrops at all. It was a box of cigars.

This threw the Democrats into a furore of stagnated activity. Cigars are associated with campaigns. The worse the cigar, the more bitter the struggle.

And so the 1932 presidential struggle has been prematurely opened because a bag of gumdrops was a box of cigars.

It's little things like these that change the destinies of nations.

UNVEIL TABLET AFTER 9 YEARS

After a lapse of nine years, the bronze memorial tablet purchased in 1922 by citizens of North Braddock's First Ward to honor their World War veterans was unveiled and dedicated yesterday afternoon at Brinton avenue and Quarry street, North Braddock.

Woodrow Wilson Post No. 2, American Legion, co-operated with the North Braddock residents at yesterday's dedication at which Judge John P. Egan, of Common Pleas Court, delivered the address.

Michael J. Yasofsky was chairman of the program committee and F. DeWitt Zuerner was master of ceremonies. Patrick McLeigh, president of North Braddock Council, accepted the tablet for the borough.

The tablet bears the names of 110 men and women, six of whom were killed in service. Gold stars are placed before the names of John Cobner, William Jackson, Michael Hornack, Fred Beachs and Owen Mulroy.

Buhl Grant Gives $49,300 to Clinic

BISHOP BOYLE'S PLEA READ IN CHURCHES

Letter Stresses Necessity Of Safeguards to Avert Repitition of Fire Tragedy

A check-up today will reveal the amount realized last night from two benefit performances at the Penn and Stanley theaters for the Little Sisters of the Poor, whose home for the aged was destroyed by fire July 24 with the loss of 48 lives.

Both performances began at midnight, the actors going from one theater to the other. In addition to the several vaudeville acts there were moving pictures. All performers and theater attendants contributed their services free.

SEEK TO REBUILD HOME

The Little Sisters of the Poor are now engaged in raising $600,000 to rebuild the home.

The programs included a screen comedy, overture and an organlude. Performers taking part in the vaudeville were Nan Halperin, Rome and Gaut, Ruth Petty, Dick Powell, Ivan Triesault, Douglas Stanbury, Don Cummings, the Mullen Sisters, the Rio Brothers, Richard Montgomery, Dick Leibert, Dave Broudy, Harry Hoehle and Bernie Armstrong.

BISHOP'S APPEAL READ

A letter from the Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh Catholic diocese, appealing for funds to restore the home was read in churches through the diocese yesterday.

Bishop Boyle stressed the need for the installation of modern safety devices in such institutions and asked that generous contributions be made to prevent a repetition of the tragedy.

In a radio address, to be given over Station KDKA at 6:30 tonight, Bishop Boyle will make his second appeal for contributions to the campaign. A boat ride for the benefit of the fund will be given tonight by the Catholic Order of Foresters, and two similar events will take place August 27 under the auspices of the Daughters of St. Ann's Church.

Excursion to Aid New Home for Aged

The Little Sisters of the Poor Home for the Aged will benefit from a boat excursion to be given by the Catholic Order of Foresters, Sunday, August 30, on the steamer Washington. The boat will leave the foot of Wood street at 10 a. m., returning at 11 p. m. Tickets may be secured at the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women, or from any member of the Foresters, according to E. J. Murphy, chairman.

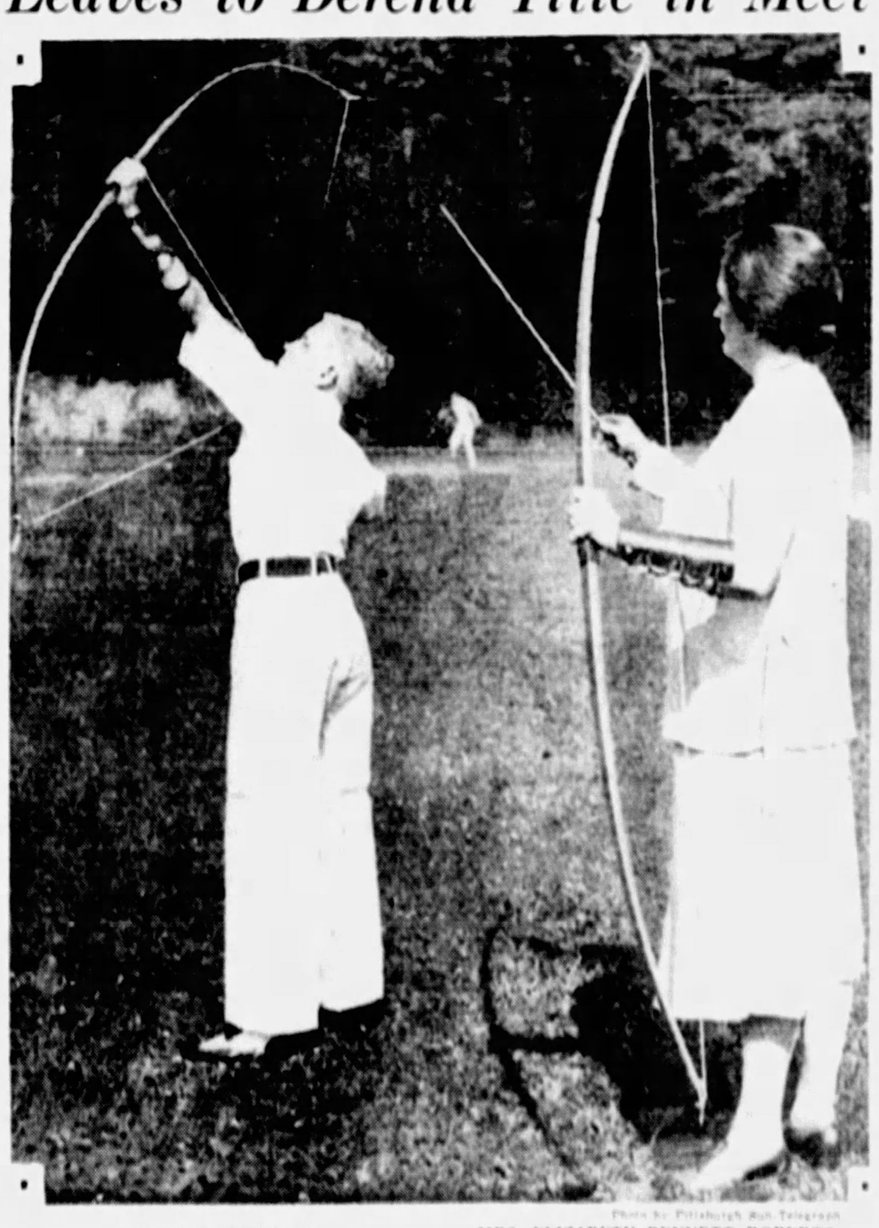
National Woman Archery Chief Leaves to Defend Title in Meet



MILNOR ROBERTS, 15 — MRS. ELIZABETH BENNETT ROBERTS
MRS. ROBERTS, BEN AVON, NATIONAL WOMAN ARCHERY FLIGHT CHAMPION, TEACHING SON

Gets Biggest Thrill as Arrow Quits Bow on Flight to Target; Considered a Natural

Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett Roberts, national woman archery flight champion, 168 Dickson avenue, Ben Avon, will defend her title in the national archery tournament at Canandaigua, New York, this week.

Mrs. Roberts is considered a "natural" in archery circles. Before she won the woman's flight championship of 241 yards in a national tournament at the Biltmore Country Club, Rye, N. Y., August 21, 1928, she had not shot more than 15 flight arrows in the three months of her archery experience. She learned to shoot in May, 1928.

ACTIVE IN SPORTS

She had always been active in other sports, however, and has the perfect shooting record of 10 bull's eyes in succession at a 50-foot range with a Winchester 22. She and her husband, J. Milnor Roberts, learned to shoot in 1926. James Giles, former national target champion, and Mrs. Roberts's father, Richard R. Bennett, taught them. Mrs. Roberts said:

"Many men are amazed during tournaments at the apparent ease with which I can draw a 70-pound bow. But it is not just a matter of strength. My wrists are comparatively weak. It is the clean snap and jerk release of the arrow which counts in flight shooting. And instant judgment."

Posture, the technique of releasing the arrow, and of course the equipment varies considerably

FUND PROVIDED TO ENLARGE SCOPE

Medical Consultation Service to Be Placed On Self-Paying Basis

The Buhl Foundation today announced a grant of $49,300 to the Pittsburgh Diagnostic and Consultation Clinic so that the clinic may enlarge the scope of its demonstration program and so it may be enabled to finance itself to a self-sustaining basis in three years.

The clinic unique in the United States is maintained to place a complete clinical and consultation service within the reach of the average family. It is not intended to replace the family physician and accepts only patients referred by these physicians.

Under the leadership of Dr. William N. Merrill, the clinic was established five years ago.

The announcement says:

"It is believed there will be general agreement with the opinion voiced by the secretary of the American Medical Association, that the provision of adequate scientific medical care to all people at a cost that can be reasonably met by them is 'the one great outstanding problem before the medical profession today.'

"The importance of the attack upon this problem is indicated by the nation-wide five-year program of the Committee on the Cost of Medical Care, intended to seek practicable solutions. It seems clear that there is likely to be no one answer to the question. It is, therefore, desirable that the problem be attacked upon many fronts, and always with due regard to justice for the physician and the ethics of medical practice."

MISSING NURSE HUNT FUTILE

Attaches of the Missing Persons Bureau today had found no trace of Helen Sharpnack, 21, a student nurse at Homeopathic Hospital, missing since Wednesday.

Her father, Thomas P. Sharpnack, of 304 Center avenue, Lock No. 4, Charleroi, said she was of a serious and melancholy disposition. She was last seen by Miss Norma Seal, supervisor of Y. W. C. A. Camp Carondawanna, five miles from Zelienople.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 10.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Say, some more of our girls ought to get married and retire for a while. Look at our Helen Wills Moody—bless her lamp shaded form—she just went out and brought the tennis championship back to California.

Two of our pilots flew over Japanese fortifications and now it looks like they will be hung. When a Jap is serious over some fool thing he can be the most foolishly serious of all the two-legged folks. Well, there you go Hoover. Secretly sending these boys over their to get a line on all this just shows you he ain't thinking about us here at home—only worried about whipping Japan.

Yours, WILL.

"In larger practice the bended elbow of the right arm should be level with the shoulder, and the arrow released right under your nose. "In flight shooting the arrow is pointed at a 45-degree angle into the air. The draw and release is accomplished without hesitation. The slightest pause will detract from speed and distance. Judgment must be instantaneous."

The biggest thrill in archery Mrs. Roberts believes is the moment after a flight arrow has been released. She said:

"It goes so swiftly the eye can scarcely follow it. Its flight is poetical."

All of Mrs. Roberts' bows and arrows are made by Judd G. Boggs of Pennsylvania. They are of yew wood which has been seasoned at least five years.

Mrs. Roberts will use a 54-pound bow, more especially built for her by Boggs, for tournament. She and her husband left Pittsburgh Saturday morning. Tomorrow target shooting competitions will be held. The flight shoot in which Mrs. Roberts will compete is set for Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. There will be awards Friday morning. Awards of trophies will be made at a banquet Friday night.

SEEK RECEIVER FOR OLD BANK

A suit asking for a receiver of the assets of the former Cambria Title Savings and Trust Company, taken over by the former Ebensburg Trust Company August 12 1929, and that the merger be declared void was filed in Federal Court today by Paul E. Rhetter of Clarksburg, W. Va. and Walter C. Perry of Glendale, Cal., stockholders. The Ebensburg Trust Company closed its doors last February 10.

Defendants named are the two banks, George F. Taylor, jr., special deputy secretary of banking, and 24 officers and directors of the two institutions.

The plaintiffs allege the officers of the old Cambria Company secretly controlled the directorate of the Ebensburg bank and that the latter was organized primarily for taking over the former.

The plaintiffs say that the officers of the Cambria bank made excess loans and colluded with one another for personal gain.

TWO CYCLISTS DIE IN CRASH WITH AUTO

Man Killed, Girl Hurt as They Fall From Car; Driver Held in Default of Bail

Automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district over the week end resulted in a toll of three dead and eight injured.

Stanley Sienkiewicz, 19, of 3608 Fleetwood street, and Anthony Gostomski, 18, of 3524 Fleetwood street, were killed and Leo Poswa, 19, of 3532 Fleetwood street was critically injured when a motorcycle on which they were riding crashed head-on into an automobile as they were trying to pass another car on a hill on Butler Pike near Zelienople Saturday night. Poswa is in Ellwood City Hospital.

Mr. Sienkiewicz

The victims had been chums since boyhood, according to friends. They started out late Saturday with the family of Poswa to swim. When their friends were ready to return home, the boys were unwilling to leave.

The Poswa family started back in their car before the boys were finished. A sister of Poswa said:

"They said that they would take one more dive and then join us. They must have taken several more, because they left about an hour later."

P. J. Pfeifer, of 2115 Harlan street, North Side, driver of the automobile, and his wife, Theresa, suffered fractured ribs and were taken home.

FALLS FROM CAR, DIES

Samuel McCoy, 17, of 308 Cedar avenue, died early yesterday in Allegheny General Hospital from a fractured skull suffered when he fell from an automobile in Evergreen road, Millvale, after he had lowered the door catch according to a report to the Coroner's office.

Stephen Gaziauskas, 16, of 109 Gazzam street, North Side, injured when she fell from the automobile with McCoy, was reported in a serious condition. Thomas McClelland, 18, of 516 Lockhart street, alleged driver of the machine, was held in jail in default of $7,500 bail.

Four persons were injured slightly when two automobiles collided late yesterday at West Liberty and Ray avenues. The injured were Lester Sergeant, 41, and Mrs. Rosella Ammon, 44, both of 143 West Cherry street, Washington, who were taken to Mercy Hospital, and J. D. Lavine, 53, and Mrs. Isabelle Wesserman, 27, both of 110 Ashland street, Canonsburg. Lavine and Mrs. Wesserman were treated at a physician's office nearby.

AUTO HITS TROLLEY

Joseph Consentino, 44, of 634 Idlewood street, Carnegie, and R. J. Purcell, of 332 Woodward avenue, McKees Rocks, were injured when Consentino's automobile crashed into the rear of a street car in West Carson street last night, according to police.

Injured in an automobile accident in Moon Run last night, Mrs. Lessie Staubach, 48, of 252 Grandview avenue, was reported in serious condition in Passavant Hospital today.

J. Knox McConnell, 36, of McKeesport, his wife, 35, and her sister, Elizabeth Rice, 36, were injured yesterday in an automobile accident near Camden, N. J., which proved fatal to the driver of the other machine.

POLICEMAN THEIR BEST FRIEND

LOUISE RATTI, 13 — PATROLMAN FRANCIS J. KENNY — MARY ESTOCK, 14

Miss Louise, Traverskyn, Pa., suffering a broken leg, and Miss Mary, Juvenile Court ward, at West Penn Hospital with their "best friend," a patrolman who became interested in their loneliness, brought them many gifts. Miss Louise must now go home, breaking the trio.

CHEERS SMALL INVALIDS

NANCY CARROLL HERE IN PLANE

Two little girls in the West Penn Hospital are sure that a policeman is their best friend. Louise Ratti, 13, of Traverskyn, Pa., in the hospital with a broken leg, and Mary Estock, 14, Juvenile Court ward, were lonesome while they were recuperating.

Patrolman Francis J. Kenny, assigned to the hospital to guard some prisoners, became interested in them. Each day he appeared at the girls' room with candy or fruit and helped to while away the long hours.

The girls, forgetting their injuries, were regaled with stories by the officer, tales of thrilling chases, battles and captures. The long hours seemed shorter while their friend talked to them.

But even the most pleasant of friendships must come to an end. Late last night Louise was declared ready to be taken to her home. As she left the hospital she said long farewells to the officer who had brought her happiness.

A Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., plane flying from the West and carrying Miss Nancy Carroll, screen star, and Jack Bellis, noted aviator, arrived at Bettis Field yesterday at 5 p. m.

The plane was held over in Columbus for a short period due to adverse weather conditions and was delayed at Bettis Field for a short time for the same reason. It took off after a short delay, its destination being the Newark airport.

Search for the body was resumed today.

Of course They're friendly to your throat—they're FRESH!

THERE are three things about a cigarette that can sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat.

(1) Harsh tobaccos.

(2) Particles of peppery dust left in the tobaccos because of inefficient cleaning methods.

(3) A parched dry condition of the tobacco due to loss of natural moisture by overheating or evaporation.

Camels in the new Humidor Pack are fine cigarettes kept fine, free of every one of these drawbacks to real smoking pleasure! They are blended of the choicest tobaccos—fine Turkish and mild Domestic tobaccos—the choicest that money and experience can buy.

They are kept free from the sting of peppery dust by a special vacuum-cleaning process.

This scientific germ-safe wrapping—not plain ordinary Cellophane but moisture-proof Cellophane which costs nearly twice as much—seals in all the natural freshness and aroma—seals it so tightly that wet weather cannot make Camels damp, nor drought weather make them dry.

As a favor to your throat try factory-fresh Camels for just one day, then quit them—if you can.

Tune in CAMEL QUARTER HOUR featuring Morton Downey and Tony Wons
Columbia Broadcasting System—every night except Sunday

CAMELS

Mild . . NO CIGARETTY AFTER-TASTE

Don't remove the moisture-proof Cellophane from your package of Camels after you open it. The Humidor Pack is protection against sweat, dust and germs. It delivers fresh Camels and keeps them right until the last one has been smoked

The Loud Speaker
By Louis Reid

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—Europe may not have much left to send us on the radio but we have a large cargo of microphone material to dispatch to Europe. Moreover, as if to silence a recent squawk in this department, we're going to dispatch it.

The M. Peley has been busy on his European trip. He may not have come within earshot of the lonely woodchopper at Doorn but he seems to have had easy access to the great and near-great throughout England and the Continent. To say nothing of those who direct the traffic of the radio seas.

* * *

The result is that a continuous procession of notables is promised us. And in return we shall give them not only our notables, but our jazz and our symphony and maybe a crooning tenor or two. Each of Europe's indifference to American radio in the past can probably be attributed to its refusal to inhale the breath of commerce that is identified with our programs. The breath, it now seems, is to be confined to American shores.

* * *

We find that many of our programs are to be flashed to England at 11 p. m., which means that England will hear our jazz: jazz in all styles from the low and languorous to the hot and hectic. We'll make England take it and like it. And then to show her we're not as crazy as we seem we'll air for their benefit occasionally the solemn accents of Hoover, the wisecracks of Walker, the voices of other of our celebs who can talk without being too trivial or too dull.

* * *

For Austria—and why is Austria alone specified?—we shall reserve the Philharmonic. Other countries may not want our symphony bands, even though they're recognized as the best in the world. They may prefer their own bands' interpretation of the masters. What they seemingly do want from us above anything else is our dance music, our folk tunes from mammyland, the ballads and jigs of the countryside.

* * *

Well, it's a good thing that there is to be some effort at balance in international radio. Europe too long has had things her own way. The barons of broadcasting are forever clearing their throats about the close bond of understanding which radio brings to the peoples of the world, but they have made little attempt to present the American viewpoint, to induce Europe to say—and mean it—"We love you."

Figuring a 35 ball would hit him on the head Washington drafted him in the fall of 1930 but in April of 1930 decided he wasn't worth it, sold him outright and traded him to the Red Sox for Bill Barrett. The rest is a matter of history that makes many a manager feel like kicking himself. Webb suddenly came into his own, improved 100 per cent as a fielder and thrower, developed a steadier batting punch than ever and still he needs but a few more doubles to break the major league record of 67, which was set by George Burns of the Indians in 1926. It will be detrimental to the fact that he is one of the leading all around hitters of his loop.

ON THEIR FINAL eastern stands of the year, starting tomorrow at New York, the Cubmen will have to improve on their previous showings among the senators to finish even as high as fifth place. Out of 25 games played in the East they have won only 10. In Boston alone do they hold an edge having won four out of seven there. In Philadelphia they have taken only one out of six in Brooklyn they have bagged but two out of six, and in New York they have broken even in six.

The minister denies a breach with Bob Edgren, a fellow commissioner, over the refusal of a permit to Ancil Hoffman, former Oakland promoter, whose return to the sport was opposed by the Rev. Kelly, but while saying that he and Edgren still are friends he admits that the incident has left him less enthusiastic about commission work.

NOBODY [illegible] TAKE a hand in promoting professional boxing without [illegible] a mess. The Rev. Kelly says. The boxers are all O. K. but [illegible] and managers have among them a few rich [illegible] and excitement to the game now.

LAST YEAR'S FOOTBALL team at the University of Southern California probably will be more strongly represented in the professional grid game next fall than any other college eleven of 1930. No fewer than four of its star members have already signed to play for the big money teams. The latest to turn pro is Jess Shaw, for the last three years right guard on the Trojan outfit. He has signed to play with the Chicago Cardinals and will report September 1. The three other Southern California players to sign pro contracts previously were Russ Saunders, Nate Barrager and Morris Badgro.

EVEN IF ONE of America's woolliest tennis players succeeds in winning back for this country the title which was taken abroad for the first time last year by Miss Betty Nuthall, Uncle Sam's male racqueters may have to do some tall hustling to keep the men's championship from going across the water. The coming of Fred Perry, English star, for this year's tournament, spells a big threat.

Only a year ago, Perry was just another tennis player in the wide field of internationalists, but he has since rocketed to one of the leading positions in the world. In his last four matches of Davis Cup competition he was defeated only once, that time by Henri Cochet in the challenge round. Many good judges rate him second only to the great Cochet himself, and it may be no easy matter for the American stars to turn him back.

CLASSES AT THE University of Pittsburgh will not open for more than a month, and the boxing season will not begin until February 1, but Coach Joe Orsini, of the Panther mittmen is already making his plans for a strenuous campaign.

The schedule is a hard one, considering the fact that Pitt is entering not only its second year of intercollegiate boxing. Meets are scheduled with Penn State, Penn, West Virginia and Carnegie Tech.

Joe Orsini

ORSINI WILL CONCENTRATE his attention on building up boxing at Pitt as an intramural sport. The former Slippery Rock athlete, an instructor in the school of physical education, hopes to have a majority of those enrolled in this department, and all freshmen taking their compulsory physical training, engage in boxing. Inter-fraternity, inter-class and inter-departmental bouts are planned. By inducing as many freshmen as possible to take up boxing instead of more formal physical drills, Orsini hopes to instill in them a liking for the glove sport which will keep them engaged in it during their four years at the university. And, incidentally, that system should assure a plentitude of varsity material several years hence.

ARGENTINE POLO TEAM WINS

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y., Aug. 10. (AP.)—The crack Santa Paula polo quartet from the Argentine, galloping with all the fire of the original Four Horsemen, scored a last-minute victory yesterday over an American four representing the Sands Point Club and led by the redoubtable Tommy Hitchcock.

The final score was 13 and 12 after eight periods of wild riding and free scoring decided in favor of the Argentines at the very finish when Juan Reynal tapped through the winning goal on a spectacular assist from Manuel Andrada.

Gazzotti tied the score in the eighth period. Hitchcock missed two good chances to break the deadlock then lost the ball in the closing minute of play, as Andrada connected and lofted it 75 yards to the very mouth of the goal. Juan Reynal was waiting there for the stroke that decided the game.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY. FACHI—A CITY AND FORTRESS MADE OF SOLID SALT—Fachi is situated amidst the overpowering solitude of Central Sahara. Its interminable twisting and turning alleys make this a city of shadows and one of the eeriest human habitations in the world. On all sides the walls, the houses and the double ramparts surrounding the city are constructed of solid salt. Dust and age have blackened this curious building material, which is as hard and durable as first-class concrete and has withstood numerous hostile sieges. Its inhabitants are of the Beri Beri tribes, formerly noted as desert robbers and who today look as villainous as ever. SMOKES A CIGAR AND PLAYS A HARMONICA AT THE SAME TIME—Defort Bailey, of Philadelphia, gives daily exhibitions of his unique ability to play a harmonica and smoke a cigar at the same time. He works in and around the business section of the city. The sketch of Bailey was made by Gene Kordy, of 88 West Linton street, Philadelphia, who witnessed the performance recently in the City Hall Court Yard.

O. S. U. GRID STAR DEAD

CLEVELAND, Aug. 10. (AP.)—David E. Chizek, 20, varsity quarterback of the Ohio State University football team, died at his home here yesterday of injuries received in a football game last fall.

Chizek, expected to be one of the greatest athletes ever developed in Cleveland, apparently was on the road to recovery until last Saturday, when he returned to his bed.

Physicians said his death was due to tubercular meningitis.

Chizek was injured in the Ohio State-Michigan game last November. A bruise on his back became infected and for five months he was confined to his bed in University Hospital, Columbus. He was brought to hospitals here for treatment and two months ago he was convalescing and apparently recovering.

U. S. Stars Out Of Canadian Open

MONTREAL, Quebec, Aug. 10. (AP.)—The Canadian amateur golf championships were robbed of some of its international interest today, when Francis Ouimet and Fred Wright, Jr., of Boston, and Eddie Held, of New York, failed to appear. Their names were scratched.

The scratching of Ouimet was not unexpected, but the others were expected to start.

Ross (Sandy) Somerville, of the London Hunt Club, defending titleholder, posted a 78 for the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying round. Most of the early finishers were in the 80's.

GOLF TOURNEY CARDED

A Pennsylvania Golf Association tournament will be staged at the Woodcrest Country Club Wednesday of next week, it was announced today. The event will be a one-day handicap competition of both match and medal play at 18 holes.

Yale Court Captain Loses Left Arm

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 10. (AP.)—Edgar W. Warren II, of Westwood, Mass., captain-elect of the Yale University basketball team, still is in a critical condition in a hospital here. His left arm was amputated at the shoulder Saturday as the result of a boating accident.

Warren, who is 23 years old, fell from a boat on Raquette Lake last Wednesday and severely cut his arm between the wrist and elbow on a blade of the outboard motor. He suffered greatly from loss of blood and underwent several blood transfusions prior to the operation.

ENGLISH STARS WIN AT RYE

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 10. (AP.)—England's invading tennis stars have made an impressive start in the eastern turf court tennis championships.

Frederick J. Perry, No. 2 singles player for the British Davis Cup team, and Joan Ridley and Mrs. Elsie Goldsack Pittman, ranking women's stars, all started an American campaign with easy victories yesterday. A fourth Briton, George Patrick Hughes, doubles player for the British Davis Cup team, had a walkover into the second round of men's singles when his first-round opponent defaulted.

The women's division was robbed of much of its interest by the withdrawals of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn and Penelope Anderson.

Play was to begin in earnest in men's singles today with George M. Lott and Cliff Sutter, finalists in the Southampton tournament, making their first starts.

Newton, Gavuzzi Win 500-Mile Race

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 10.—(AP.)—Arthur Newton, of South Africa, and Peter Gavuzzi, of Southampton, England, won the 500-mile run from Montreal to Quebec and return although they finished no better than fifth in the final lap yesterday.

The two veterans won $3,000 first prize money. They piled up a big lead early in the race and coasted to victory easily. The winners ran the distance in total elapsed time of 53 hours 15 minutes and 8 seconds.

August Fagel and John Jokela, the Finnish team, won second money of $1,500, and Joie Ray, of Chicago, and M. B. McNamara, of Brisbane, Australia, divided $1,000 for third place.

FORMER CHAMP SCORES 75 AT FIELD CLUB

BULLETIN.

Fred Baroni, of the Oakland Beach course, Conneaut Lake, gained a tie with Vincent Eldred, of Highland when he scored a 75 in the West Penn Open championship at the Pittsburgh Field Club this afternoon. His card

Out 4 4 5 3 5 3 4 5 6—39
In 4 5 4 5 4 3 4 3—36—75.

By ALEX SWARTSFAGER

Ed Eldred, famed homemade professional of the Highland Country Club, went after his second West Penn Open golf championship with a vengeance this morning when he posted exceptional golf through very bad weather to score a 75 which put him three strokes ahead with six of the field reported in. He had 38 holes round of the 36 holes to go at the Pittsburgh Field Club. Eldred held the championship in 1929 and is eager to retain it.

Ted Luciani of Corry, Pa., the defending champion, and Wayne Lohrer, assistant professional at the Greensburg Country Club were Eldred's leadership with 77's. One other man, Dick Linden, an Arizona professional playing as a guest of the West Penn Golf Association also recorded a 77, but his score will not figure in the official tabulation.

Emil Loeffler of Oakmont, Ernie Jarosh of Castle Shannon and Johnnie Capetanopoulos of Culbertson Hills, Uniontown, Pa., were tied at 79.

Sam Parks, Jr., of Hartland, set the pace for the amateurs with an 80. Raymond L. Babcock, of Oakmont, being next with an 82.

H. G. Olson, an unattached pro, and Archie Loeffler, of Oakmont, needed 81's for their first round.

TAKES 6 ON TWELFTH

Eldred's 75 might have been much better had he not taken a 6 on the par 5 twelfth hole, a 5 on the par 3 fourteenth and a 5 on the par 3 sixteenth. His superb outward trek started with two under par for the first three holes, he negotiating the 472-yard, par 4 first hole in a birdie 3 and the 500 par third hole a par 5 affair in 4. He played even with par to the tenth hole where he missed a put and went one over par for a 5. With all his birdies he had a par 36 out.

Former West Penn champion started back like a house afire, getting a birdie 3 on the tenth and the par for the eleventh and then his troubles began. It took him 39 to finish his first round.

His card

Out 3 4 4 4 5 3 4 4 5—36
In 3 4 6 5 5 4 4 3 5—39—75

Although Tobias registered 6s on the par 5 fifth hole, par 4 eighth hole and par 5 twelfth hole, his playing on the others was good enough for him to score a 39 out and 38 back for the 77 that placed him among the leaders. His card.

Out 5 4 4 3 6 3 4 6 4—39
In 4 5 6 5 4 3 4 4 4—38—77

LOEFFLER OFF GAME

Out 4 5 6 3 6 3 3 5 5—40
In 4 5 6 5 2 6 3 4 4—39—79

Loeffler has been very ill and is playing in a weakened physical condition.

Luther was playing in and out golf to go out in 38 and return in 39. The hole that cost him the chance of leading the field for the first 18 holes was the seventeenth.

Says Nick Altrock

—Baseball's Comedian—

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The kindest deed of the week was Sam Breadon announcing he would let Gabby Street manage the Cardinals again next year. Out in St. Louis it's an old tribal custom to fire a manager who wins a pennant and with Gabby copping his second straight we were expecting Breadon would not only fire him next year but would refuse to give Gabby a reference.

Nick Altrock

I guess the Card's management must be softening up, however, and letting bygones be bygones or Street would be looking for work next year as punishment for snaring the flag.

I see the Athletics had a losing streak last week. They split a doubleheader.

Two star lightweights, who have scored victories in their last battles in this area, meet in the 10-round main bout of the Monarch Bowl, North Braddock, tonight and promise to furnish a good evening's entertainment.

Johnny Jadick

One of them is Johnny Jadick, of Philadelphia, who is fighting for the second time in the Bowl, after scoring a knockout over Tommy Ryan, Rankined Toledo boy, in the main event of the Bowl's opening night.

The other is Sammy Dorfman, of New York, who took the Barrow Street boy's measure in three fast rounds in the semi-final of that show.

Jadick, who is managed by Harry Markson, has been scheduled for three starts since his knockout of Ryan, but each time he has been matched he has failed to appear. He floored Ryan for a nine count with a sidewalk right to the jaw in the first round and battered him all the way to victory there after.

The party of the second part, Sammy Dorfman, of New York, who took the Barrow Street boy's measure in three fast rounds in the semi-final of that show, is managed by Mel Allen, of New York. Dorfman scored a knockout over Mel Aragon in New York last week and beat Pirate Lefty Isaacs, Henry Peltz's find.

Al Lee, Charleroi heavyweight, boxes Arthur DeKuh in the opening 10-round preliminary to the Tommy Loughran-Jack Grimm battle at the Phillies Park, Philadelphia, August 21. George La Rocco meets Steve Hamas and Walter Cobb tangles with Frankie Lauher in other 10-rounders of the all-heavyweight bill.

PHILLIES DENY CLUB'S SALE TO BLOCK

PHILADELPHIA, A. [illegible] 10.—The rumor that the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club is to be sold was denied today by Isaac C. Haak, president of the local club. It had been reported that Paul Black, owner of the Newark International League team, was in the market for the Phillies' franchise.

The report originated when Black made a tempting offer to the Phillies' owners. According to Haak, however, the rejected offer was contemplated new ball parks, without foundation. Black also had no say in the matter for the transfer of either the Charlotte team or the Pittsburgh Pirates.

fled out, but Cliff Heathcote rocked one for a triple to right to score the home pitcher. Dan Errois, Joe Stripp tied up the battle with a single.

Vesalia Larry seemed to go to pieces after the tying tally went over. Hendrick and Cuccinello singled in succession and Jensen pitched a wild throw that advanced two runners on the sacks.

CULLOP HITS HOMER

Steve Swetonic was rushed to the aid of French, but Nick Cullop had a terrific greeting for Steve, the big outfielder drove the ball out of the park to add three safety tallies to the Reds' cluster.

Benton pitched a steady game for the winning nine, the Pirates breaking through only in the sixth when they made two runs that looked like pay balls.

Brame was pitted against Benny Frey in the twilight affair. The Pirates took the lead in the second inning of this game as they scored twice. The Reds forced a deadlock in the third, but the invaders unleashed a hammer-and-tongs offensive against Frey in the fourth, the three resultant tallies putting the Buccos in a commanding position.

The Buccos picked up single counters in the fifth, sixth and eighth. Brame yielded one in the fourth and another in the sixth, but the tall Kentuckian had a lot of slab resourcefulness and stamina, he blanking the home boys in the last three rounds. Gus Suhr was at first in the second fray, the Coast Leaguer hitting a triple off Eppa Rixey, relief twirler, to score a Pittsburgh run.

COTTON SLUMP SENDS SHARE PRICES OFF

Report of Steel Tonnage Causes Fresh Setbacks After Market Rallies

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP.)—Sweeping declines in the world cotton markets injected a fresh element of bearishness into the financial outlook today, which completely obscured the improved international situation with the victory of the Brüning government in yesterday's Prussian plebiscite.

The stock market opened freely, suffered a little forward motion but lagged again after publication of United States Steel's monthly unfilled tonnage report. Trading continued extremely dull, while losses in leading industrial and utilities were limited to moderate proportions, the persistent weakness in the railroad group developed into pronounced weakness in spots.

Union Pacific and Santa Fe tumbled 6 points and 4 respectively, the former to the lowest price in six years. Miscellaneous issues off a point or two included United States Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, Fox, North American, American Telephone, International Harvester and Sears Roebuck.

The break in cotton was startling because it came out of an almost clear sky. The government crop report issued after the close of this market on Saturday brought an abrupt decline in Chicago where the market was still open, but was not felt in New York and Liverpool until today. The estimate of the crop at 13,584,000 bales was fully 1,500,000 bales larger than generally expected. Gloom in the cotton trade here was inclined to the opinion that this large crop would make German interests less interested in arranging to take any substantial portion of the Farm Board's holdings on a favorable credit basis.

The rubber market also turned comparatively weak, with crude rubber selling at 5 cents a pound here for the first time in history. This was in sympathy with London, where new lows were also recorded.

The unfilled tonnage report of United States Steel, showing a reduction of 74,507 tons in business on its books during the month of July, despite the fact that most output ranged around one-third of capacity, was construed as moderate bearish in view of the fact that mills have been understood to be gauging output closely to incoming business.

The defeat of the radical groups in the key German state of Prussia yesterday made for a better feeling regarding the European outlook in capital centers generally.

The least favorable aspect of the local stock market has been the persistent sag in railway shares, which today were as a group around or below the bear market low of June 2. The chart reading theorists regard this as an indication that the June 2 lows for other groups will be severely tested. Liquidation however remains extremely light and the brokerage loan figures attest the extraordinarily deflated condition of the list generally.

Crude Rubber Sells At Record Low Sum

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—For the first time in the history of the rubber trade, crude rubber was quoted at 5 cents a pound. August old contract sold at a decline of 30 points, while other old contracts were down 12 to 18 points, with new record lows established throughout the list.

Electrical Marts In Dull Season

TRADE DECLINE SLACKENING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP-INS).—The decline in general business activity became less marked during the first half of July, following a greater than seasonal recession in June, the commerce department announced today.

Among the manufacturing industries there were marked sharp increases in the output of iron and steel and automobile production, but the rate activity has maintained close to seasonal levels and was above the 1930 range.

The adjusted index of industrial production for July showed a drop of 2.4 per cent, a change largely accounted for by a reduction of 4.4 per cent in the adjusted index of manufacturing output, while the decline in mineral production was only slightly more than seasonal.

Department store sales, adjusted for the number of working days, fell 6.2 per cent in July, but if adjusted for seasonal variations the decline was only 1.1 per cent.

Among the most favorable factors during June was relative stability in the rate of decline of wholesale prices which [illegible] a temporary rise early [illegible]

Oklahoma's Oil Suspension Has Slight Effect

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE CLOSING OF A LARGE portion of the oil production in Oklahoma is beginning to have an effect on the prices of refined petroleum products throughout the Middle West. Up to the present time, the drastic action taken has made little change in the fundamental conditions troubling the industry.

Operations of some of the refineries dependent on Oklahoma wells have been stopped but the majority of the leading companies have been able to draw from supplies on hand or to reverse the flow of pipe lines to permit them to draw oil from other fields. A stronger market for gasoline at Chicago and other points has resulted from the uncertainty of the future supply.

Naturally any prolonged suspension of oil production in Oklahoma will tend to strengthen the market. But the real menace to the stability of the oil trade in Texas is still unchecked and is pouring its excessive runs of oil onto the market.

Oklahoma Under Control

OKLAHOMA IS NOT SUFFERING from the mistakes of its own producers. It is paying for the sins of Texas. Oklahoma wells have been under rigid control for several months. Operators have been adhering to proration ridings. Oklahoma's output has been kept within its allotted limits.

A large portion of the markets normally being supplied by the Oklahoma wells closed by the State National Guard, will be able to get oil from the uncontrolled Texas fields. No permanent help is likely to be given to the oil trade until Texas brings its oil operators into line. Until that time the Texas producers will merely benefit from the larger market created by Oklahoma's action.

Shutdowns Not Important

DISPATCHES FROM TEXAS indicate that only a small number of the wells in the important pools are embraced in voluntary shutdown agreements recently made by operators. The major offenders in the new Texas fields have shown little sympathy towards the movement to side with Oklahoma in stopping production until higher prices are established.

The Texas Legislature has been in session for several weeks in an effort to find remedies for the troubles of oil operators. Up to the present no constructive action has been taken. The proposal of Gov. Sterling, that a new commission, with ample powers to restrict production be formed, has been rejected by the House and Senate.

Gulf Gets Oil In Texas

THE OKLAHOMA SHUTDOWN is not likely to affect the operations of the new refineries of the Gulf Oil Corporation in Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Toledo. These are supplied with crude from recently completed pipe lines from Oklahoma.

Gulf has been pumping oil from Texas north through its pipe system to supply this line. This has reversed the normal direction in which Gulf ships oil over lines in Texas.

Bankers Journal Says Domestic Improvement Has Been Overlooked

Overwhelming attention around the European situation has according to the American Bankers Association Journal, more to say than [illegible] interest.

But [illegible] improvement [illegible] that [illegible] has been [illegible] across [illegible] has seemingly been [illegible] looked. This [illegible] fact of the Bankers Association [illegible] funds [illegible] that some [illegible] have entered [illegible] to [illegible] depression. The [illegible] the conditions of such [illegible] shows and [illegible] which is found that operations are current 15 larger than in the corresponding period last year. The same holds true of [illegible] of chain and department store trade in various sections of the country. As [illegible] most conditions such as prevail [illegible] it is pointed out that much effort has been spent in bringing down overhead somewhat, which should result favorably on corporation earnings, especially when the turn in business arrives.

General Railway Signal has been one of the outstanding weak features among the rail equipment stocks over the last little while. The stock again was subject to persistent selling today, yielding to new low levels for the issue on the basis of present capitalization. Directors are slated to meet on August 22, and with the stock selling to yield a return of 12.5 per cent, it looks to be discounting a reduction in the $5 rate which has been in effect since 1928. The company earned $2.11 in the first half of the year against $3.04 a share in the same period last year. Cash position, however, would seem to call for conservative action. Cash and securities totaled $2,547,120 on June 30 against $2,801,659 on December 31, though bank loans were reduced by $700,000 in the interval.

Vanadium Corporation of America probably will show net [illegible] $225,000 to $150,000 for the first half year, after all charges, including interest on the $5,000,000 5½ per cent debentures which were brought out early in March this year. In the first quarter of this year the company had net profit of about $150,000. In the first half of 1930 Vanadium reported net income of $1,250,237, including profit on resale of the company's own stock.

The Trader in Barron's Weekly says—The possibilities of the fall recovery in business are strictly limited by the disastrous prices ruling for major crops, and meantime the end of depressing news is not yet in sight. Lasting improvement in stock prices may be slow in materializing, for only scattered investing power born of savings is available to offset scattered liquidation. It is still possible for the averages to reach the pre-moratorium low of around 130, and even to reach the June 2 level of 121.70, but even such a development would not signalize the resumption of the bear market. The merchandising shares, catering to domestic necessities and making a splendid showing in every respect, continue to stand out on the basis of yield and earning power."

With today's several corporation dividend meetings, namely those of Atlantic Refining, Canadian Pacific and Paramount-Publix out of the way, Wall street had to look forward to a further array of board meetings before the close of the week. Tomorrow action is due on the Pennick & Ford quarterly payment of 25 cents. On Wednesday, American Sugar Refining and Eastman Kodak directors are slated to act on the quarterly payments due and on Thursday action will be due on the quarterly payment of J. I. Case Threshing Machine Underwood-Elliott Fisher, and perhaps most important, considering the action of the stock and that of the railroad list in general Union Pacific. The last mentioned stock broke sharply today to new low levels for the bear market and to the lowest prices since around 1925.

One of the Street's most prominent operators, best known perhaps because of his identity with the bear side of things over the last few years, has departed on an extended trip, it was, learned today. While adhering strongly to the bear side, this operator has been credited with much of the bullish activity in Alaska Juneau, the board's leading stock. It is interesting, therefore, to note that though business is a secondary consideration insofar as his trip is concerned, the jaunt is destined to take him to Alaska, and while there he is said to contemplate an inspection of the properties of the aforementioned mining company.

GRAINS SCORE ADVANCES

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Grains scored early price upturns today with buyers encouraged by absence of unusual selling pressure and by relative steadiness of Liverpool quotations. Disposition was shown to even up on account of apparent likelihood that the government crop report on grains to be issued this afternoon would prove bullish. Opening ⅛ cent off to ¼ up, wheat afterward showed general gains. Corn started ⅛ behind to 1-8 advance and later rose all around.

Word of storms which delayed harvest operations throughout Western and Northern Europe and evidence of crop deterioration in France helped strengthen wheat. There were also advices that the volume of wheat offerings from Russia and the Danube had diminished. An additional bullish factor was the announcement that 1,600,000 bushels of United States wheat had cleared from Galveston for overseas.

Corn and oats rose with wheat.

Spectator

Other Lulls Recalled. Over-Pessimism Seen. Dividend Meetings.

—By Wall Street Spectator—

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.

THE RECORDS over the past 40 years reveal many examples of practically simultaneous low points in stock prices and market activity, including the following three, comparing with 1931.

In the first seven months of this year the total volume of transactions was the smallest in July, and the lowest level of prices was touched in June.

In 1921 July was the smallest month of transactions and August the lowest month of prices.

In 1907 November was the month of both smallest transactions and lowest prices, and in 1893 bottom prices in August were followed by the smallest volume the month following.

IN THE OPINION of usually informed observers, the majority of stock market followers at present are over-pessimistic to the same degree that they were over-optimistic two years ago.

In the two-year period since the process of deflation began to make headway, the following has been experienced:

1. Correction of the wildest stock speculation in history.

2. Strengthening of weak banking situations and elimination of the most threatening credit positions.

3. Deflation of commodity prices.

4. Reduction of security loans from over $15,000,000,000 to under $7,000,000,000.

5. Realization that international happenings are of equal importance to domestic affairs in influencing American prosperity.

6. Discarding of "new era" ideas and the return to sound economic ideas by business, banking and political leaders.

IMPORTANT DIVIDEND meetings today include that of Paramount Publix and Canadian Pacific, both of which are believed in line for changes.

Refiners held unchanged at 4.75 cents for fine granulated, while very little resale sugar was offering at 4.65 cents.

URGES COTTON REPORT PROBE

MARLIN, Tex., Aug. 10. (AP).—Senator Tom Connally (Dem.), Texas, today urged the Secretary of Agriculture to preserve all reports on the 1931 cotton crop forecast released Saturday "in order that the same may be available for a thorough investigation."

The Department of Agriculture estimated a production of 15,584,000 bales for the coming harvest.

Senator Connally, in his telegram to Washington, said the condition of the crop was so much larger on August 1 than the cotton producers and interests expected, "that it affords much doubt as to the accuracy of the forecast."

The message said further:

"I urge that you take steps to carefully preserve all data and reports upon which the estimate is based together with records of those responsible for same in order that same may be available for a thorough investigation of not only the accuracy and good faith but of the propriety of such reports."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10. (AP).—Carl Williams, cotton member of the Farm Board, believes the American cotton surplus is already so large the addition of approximately 1,500,000 bales would not make much difference to traders and growers.

Stocks should be reduced this year, he added, since it is estimated consumption of American cotton will be 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 bales greater than a year ago.

Stabilization cotton on stocks held by co-operatives will not be forced on the market by price declines, he said.

U. S. BORROWS RECORD SUM

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—By the end of August the Treasury will have borrowed about $500,000,000 during the first two months of the 1932 fiscal year, setting a new record for any similar period in history.

All the borrowing has been in Treasury bills of about 90 days' maturity so far, and at the equivalent of interest rates around one-half of 1 per cent, indicating for the period a further decline in the average rate paid on the outstanding public debt of about $16,900,000,000.

The excess of borrowing over maturities during July and August will run about $25,000,000, according to present indications. A $50,000,000 issue is due to mature August 17, and one of over $80,000,000 August 31.

The Treasury is to offer $60,000,000 three months Treasury bills dated August 17 on a discount basis.

After an opening greeting sent from Washington by President Hoover, they were to plunge into an intimate study of their industrial problems, made pointed by the business slump.

WRITTEN CONFESSION

[illegible] Mrs. Hawkins [illegible]

ANE HAWKINS

[illegible] the tragedy of it all.

If I hadn't told the poor woman that Forrest had been her daughter's "sweetie" it would not have happened.

As we were leaving headquarters we met Peter Thompson again and this time my sister Cora was with him her eyes swollen with tears. She swept me into her arms and I whispered that it was all right. I had just been a horrible mistake.

KITTY FREED

And then Viola arrived with a lawyer she had dug up somewhere. He started to be sore. The poor chap evidently had visions of defending me in a great big sensational case.

Viola flopped when she learned that I was freed. The matron and I worked on her 10 minutes to bring her out of it.

Cora wanted me to go home with her and Peter insisted but I wouldn't go then. I had to take care of Viola and I wanted to get straightened out myself.

Reporters flocked around but Mr. Sanders kept them away from me with promises to give them a statement in a few minutes. After a talk with me he did give them a statement to the effect that because I had known Forrest Malvern I had simply been questioned and that in searching for Mrs. Hawkins the scrubwoman to find out if she had seen anyone go to Forrest's apartment they had found her a suicide her letter confessing the crime beside her.

I expected that the full story would come out. Perhaps the police preferred to have it that way instead of the whole thing about accusing me.

Of course as I thought it over there was every reason for suspicion to fall on me.

They promised me the box of roses if I wanted them. I couldn't take them. I had never seen them until after it was all over and we examined them. I picked up a paper cutter and with one dig through the thin leather tore away the name. They were sore but Mr. Sanders laughed and nothing was done about it.

OFFENDED BY SUSIE

It was midnight before Viola and I got back to our little kitchenette apartment.

And didn't it look good to us!

Poor Viola was all in. She felt worse than I, despite my frayed nerves from the terrible ordeal for she had believed me guilty all along.

If they had only told me all about it when I got home and found you hadn't gone to bed," she said over and over.

If they only hadn't thought what you did about me."

She began to cry again so I comforted her and confessed that I had been silly. I would have gone up there alone with all trust in the man if now Mrs. Hawkins hadn't saved me.

Viola wasn't able to go to work the next day and I didn't feel much better for we weren't able to get to sleep until daylight. I telephoned Mrs. Miers about it. She seemed rather sore because the busy season was on.

The day after that we were back as usual. Of course there was a lot of talk and the other girls pestered me for details until Mrs. Miers shut them up. I didn't even tell her all about it but let her believe it was as the newspapers had it that I was merely questioned because I was one of Forrest's friends.

After a week of quiet during which Chubb Denny and a few other of our gentlemen friends called on us to urge us to go out we decided that we needed a little excitement and fun to make up for what we had been through.

We had a nice little party up to the time that Susie Lawlor and her actor friend chanced to blow into the night club where we were dancing.

When I caught sight of her I waved at her and then got near enough to speak to her.

She cut me dead.

"Did you mean to cut me, Susie?" I asked. "I had taken more drink than I should more than I ever did before because I was anxious to get to feeling jolly and I was still depressed.

"Who wouldn't," she snapped.

I stopped dancing when I spoke. I reached to the table and picked up somebody's highball.

"You [illegible]-on!" I shouted and threw the highball in her face.

Kitty gets another shock. Read tomorrow's thrilling installment.

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Tim Doyle sat back in a corner smoking a pipe and pretending to read the sporting pages of an evening paper.

In reality he was watching his sister, Molly. As soon as she had cleared up the family dinner dishes Tim caught her eye and winked. Molly nodded. She understood.

Tim," she said, "I've been working all day and need a breath of fresh air, be a good boy and walk down to the pier with me."

As come now Molly, haven't I been workin' all day at the garage?"

Th' devil with your work. Tim, take your sister out for a walk whin she asks you. Then, father said.

All right."

And so they walked down to the pier where they met Joe Harris and his sister Nora.

Brothers and sisters lost interest in each other, and soon Tim and Nora and Joe and Molly were paired off. They strolled about, then paired for a while and then met at the end of the long deserted pier.

"We'll have a family conference, girls," Tim said.

The girls giggled. Joe, somewhat bashful, said nothing.

"Well," said Molly, "start something."

All right. It's like this, Joe and Molly want to get hitched. Me and Nora want to do th' same. Is that right?"

"Sure," said Joe.

"How about it, girls?"

"You know darn well that's right, Tim, that's no news. What have you got on your mind. We've been wanting to get married this year gone, but we don't seem to be able to make it, and Molly snuggled up to Joe while Nora leaned against Tim and said, Got any ideas, Tim? I mean about what we'll use for money?"

DISCUSS MARRIAGE

Sure. It's like this, our folks get along well, but they can't take us and we wouldn't let them. All right, we haven't got jobs that make us millionaires and times is hard, and jobs scarce. We can't rent cottages and furnish 'em and start housekeeping and save up for th' stork."

Tim!" exclaimed Nora.

It's likely to happen, ain't it, Joe?"

I—uh, well, it happened to our folks," Joe managed to say.

What I'm getting at is that we want to get married but we can't afford it, and gawd knows when we can, and we're gettin' no younger and we're in love."

Tim, tell us something we don't know, tell us if you've got a plan," Molly demanded.

I've got a plan, all right. Old Zeb Meservey will help us."

Joe Harris began to laugh, a derisive sort of laugh.

"Are you crazy, Tim?" his sister cried. "Old Zeb Meservey wouldn't give his own mother a grain of sand if he owned the beach at Atlantic City."

"Just the same I think old Zeb will help us."

EXPLAIN PLAN

You must be planning to murder him for his money," Joe remarked.

"You know what I mean, Joe about the Lily J."

Oh, sure, and he'd like to pay us a dollar an hour."

What are you talking about, Tim dear," Nora asked.

"Zeb Meservey wants to take 2,500 cases of stuff down to Hackston Landing," Tim said. "Joe knows about it."

"Suppose you were caught and sent up for a year, I'd die," Nora cried.

It's a chance, but I'll die if I can't afford to marry you soon."

But how can you take it?" asked the practical Molly.

In the Lily J."

But Tim, you paid $800 for her, you'd lose her if you were caught," Molly cried, "and you've been renting her to Zeb."

He lease it up, no business. Listen, we can't drag down a fortune, but old Zeb will pay us $5 a case, that'll be $6,000 each, me and Joe can rent cottages, furnish 'em, get a cheap car and marry two girls on $6,000."

Can't you slip a few hundred extra cases aboard for yourselves, you can get it for $30 and sell it for $55," said Molly, still practical.

Not a chance, old Zeb is going along with us as supercargo."

What is a supercargo? Does it mean excess baggage?"

Old Zeb will be excess baggage, the old skinflint, he'll find some way to cheat you and give you $1 a case, he always does cheat and whine and squeal out of things," Molly cried.

A supercargo, Nora," Tim said, ignoring his sister, "is a man, a sort of agent who travels with the cargo, to watch it, aided, unloaded and sold. Old Zeb will watch every move, or make."

But think of it, having him alone to cheat you," Molly protested.

We're going to fix it some night, this week, when the weather is thick, we'll pull down the six grand and have a swell wedding."

"But suppose you are caught."

"Suppose Nora darling, an airplane fell on me? Can I help it? A man must take chances and I'll go through."

Hush."

The hot place for you."

There was much more talk.

Three nights later Tim and Joe got their old second-hand Lilly J. around to Zeb Meservey's warehouse.

I can't pay you boys five dollars a case," he whined. "I have to look out for myself. I'm getting old and I know a couple Polaks who'll do it for a dollar a case."

Well, we're here, we might as well take it, it will give us twelve hundred and fifty each," Tim advised.

Joe cursed a little bit, but agreed. They loaded the 2,500 cases aboard the old Lily J. and with Zeb Meservey aboard as supercargo, they apparently started for Hackston Landing, 40 miles down the coast. Fortunately Tim was a good navigator or else they would have come to grief in the thick weather.

Joe attended to the motors. They seemed to be extremely noisy.

TIM KNOWS WAY

Can't you muffle 'em down," old Zeb begged. "I got a hundred thousand dollars worth of cargo here. I can't afford to lose it."

I can't afford to lose my boat either, we're running quiet as we can," Tim assured him.

Your boat only cost you eight hundred. I ought to know, I sold it to you."

And stuck me plenty. You got a warehouse full of booze, and I'm broke now, don't worry. I've got to get you through and get that dollar a case," Tim assured him.

Are you sure you know the way? I can't afford to lose a bottle of this stuff. I'm a poor man," Zeb whined.

Sure I know the way," Tim assured him over and over.

Now and then they passed close to some other craft. There was the fog horn off Hackston Head, so Tim assured Zeb, but it was not the fog horn off Hackston Head, for that fog horn was a giant "grunter." What they heard was the fog horn off Point Nixon. Old Zeb did not know the difference. He would have been greatly surprised if he knew they were heading not for Hackston Landing, but for Port Jepson, far to the north.

If some revenuer pops out now I'll faint," Zeb whined.

You're too tough to pass out, you're going to dry up and blow away," Joe snarled.

Who are you, and what you got?" boomed a voice. "Lay to, we're going to board you."

It's a revenuer, put on full power, we can lose him in a fog," groaned Zeb.

With this noisy motor? They'd blow us out of the water with a three-pounder explosive," Tim answered.

They can't do that!"

They can't according to orders, but they do," Joe cried and he obeyed Tim's order to slow down. The big white revenuer sent a small boat over and three solid looking men got busy.

So you got plenty aboard, huh?" one of the officers cried and he turned to Zeb. "Who are you—this your old tub?"

No," Zeb said.

This gentleman," Tim explained, "is the supercargo."

That right?"

Yes, only the supercargo," whined Zeb, not even knowing the meaning of the word.

Well, we'll have to hold your craft, Uncle Sam will settle with you, you get aboard of the cutter, you are under arrest. You boys stay here and help me run the stuff to our dock where we take charge of all liquors."

You going to confiscate my boat?" Tim asked.

I see your boat, this man's booze, both of you lose, both of you, all three are under arrest."

They put Zeb in the big white cutter and steamed away.

He was landed back at his own warehouse.

We'll have a heart, your first offense, but watch out," the officer said.

Tim and Joe and the "officer," who was none other than Joe's Uncle Patrick in his fireman's uniform, put in at Port Jepson, where a party was waiting to pay them $30 a case for the whole 2,500 cases.

ZEB IS SURPRISED

The next day Zeb was surprised to see Tim and Joe.

It cost us a hundred and fifty to buy them off and they took your booze to a government warehouse," Tom said.

There was a happy gathering on the pier the next night.

After paying Uncle Pat and Skipper Brophy, we've got around 30 grand each," the boys exclaimed.

They told the whole story.

We'll keep our jobs on shore, we've banked the money already," Tim explained.

And we'll be married next month," Joe added.

They were. Every guest invited, with one exception, came to the wedding party. That was old Zeb Meservey. He was afraid to go because his invitation was addressed to:

Mr. Supercargo Meservey."

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER

So Lovely! So Helpless! It Ain't Right!

(Copyright, 1931.)

A dog named Hope, see upper left hand corner, is all right for a morning's exercise. But a couple of CUSTOMERS would be better.

Now turn to the lower right hand corner and see what you see.

There is our poor little lady "America's Prospects" lying on the prickly straw in a coal shed. And look at old Prohibition, most appropriately, half IN and half OUT.

That is how he lives, half in the LIQUOR business, half in the PROHIBITION business.

The straw is appropriate, for the lady lives in a straw country.

We have straw votes, we watch which way the straw blows in the wind, and it is usually the wrong way.

A more cheerful note is reached when we turn to the lower left hand corner of this Opper opus, and confront the little "Loot, Shoot, Boot and Snoop HAR, HAR!" brothers.

This will be continued until the middle of November, 1932, anyhow.

Impartial British Law

Dog[illegible] Case of Big Stock Pool Corporation Shows Justice Is Not Class Conscious

In [illegible] case of Old Bailey [illegible] commercial fraud [illegible] sentences [illegible] prison [illegible] striking the imagination and [illegible] on British law.

But [illegible] the spectacle of a [illegible] of the realm, [illegible] in business [illegible] of world wide scope and notable success, haled [illegible] to the bar of justice [illegible] large or deceptive manipulation [illegible] accounts [illegible] the most significant [illegible] for the [illegible].

THE LESSON OF THE CASE IS DIRECTED TO THE BUSINESS COMMUNITY NOT OF ENGLAND ALONE BUT OF THIS COUNTRY AS WELL AND TRANSCENDS IN INTEREST THE UNHAPPY FATE OF AN INDIVIDUAL.

[illegible] IT IS THE DUTY OF CORPORATIONS AND THEIR MANAGERS TO DEAL WITH THEIR SHAREHOLDERS AND WITH THE PUBLIC IN STRICT TRUTHFULNESS AND WITH COMPLETE CANDOR.

[illegible] was accused of [illegible] sums, carried in various reserve accounts of this shipping company to income accounts, thereby causing [illegible] that the company was enjoying a degree of prosperity as reflected by its income greatly [illegible] of what a truthful statement of the company's distributable receipts would have shown.

The question what courts should do [illegible] aggregate [illegible] met, [illegible] was for the purpose to deceive was starkly revealed. The methods of accomplishing the deception were [illegible] later by later, and then fell from the court's lips, the weightiest words of condemnation—"fraudulent," "indecent," "nefarious."

An incident such as this should be calculated to make some of our financial promoters and captains of industry quake in their boots.

What new and strange doctrines is this, that a corporation's statement should be ingenuously frank and literally truthful?

ARE SUCH OLD STANDBYS FOR KEEPING SHAREHOLDERS WHERE THEY BELONG, AND PROTECTING MANAGEMENT AGAINST PRYING EYES AND DISCONCERTING INTERFERENCE, SUCH AS "MAINTENANCE," "DEPRECIATION," "GOOD WILL," AND ALL THE VARIOUSLY DESCRIBED "RESERVES," TO BE EXPOSED TO THE VULGAR TEST OF TRUTHFULNESS?

Perhaps [illegible] so. Our progress in business morals has been slow. There have been [illegible] such as followed the insurance investigations followed by periods of torpid conscience and indifference. But always the time came for another step forward and new advances have been periodically recorded.

The whole conception of this country of the relations of corporate officers and directors to the affairs entrusted to them by the shareholders is behind the times. A vastly more enlightened view prevails in England.

There A COMPANY OFFICER IS REGARDED AS A TRUSTEE, even of the information he acquires as to the inside facts of the corporation's condition and activities.

It is recognized that he owes his position in the company to the shareholders, that the latter are the true owners of the corporation, that they, by their election of him to a position as director or manager, make it possible for him to become acquainted with the true condition of the corporation and HE IS FORBIDDEN TO USE THAT KNOWLEDGE FOR HIS OWN ENRICHMENT BY PERSONAL DEALINGS IN THE COMPANY'S SECURITIES in which he would possess an advantage over the general body of the company's shareholders.

How just and right this is.

What justification is there for the president or a director of such a corporation—owing his office to the trust of the shareholders, obtaining his insight into the company's affairs and to the speculative value of its stock, solely as the result of that trust—to use information, so acquired, for his individual stock operations which are generally at the expense of his fellow owners of the property, who are not so advantageously placed for "kite flying" speculation in its shares.

Another feature of corporate practice in England, which is worthy of imitation, is THE INDEPENDENT ROLE PLAYED BY THE AUDITORS OF A COMPANY. They are elected by the shareholders and CANNOT BE DISMISSED BY THE EXECUTIVE OFFICERS OF THE COMPANY.

The resulting independence of their position effectively corrects the impression, which tends so readily to form in the minds of company managers, that they own the company.

It is also an important practical protection to the shareholders and gives to corporate statements an integrity and reliability which the Kylsant conviction shows that the English courts are determined to maintain.

Hope for a Better Zoo

Councilmen's Visit to New York Brightens the Prospect for a Much Needed Improvement.

Three years ago the Chamber of Commerce sent a large party of Pittsburghers on a tour of inspection of Mississippi Valley and Gulf cities. The party were taken to St. Louis to see the zoo.

It was a revelation. The beasts, not closely confined in cages, but free to wander over a wide tract separated from the public by a deep moat, were exceedingly interesting, but the other exhibits also were far superior to anything to be seen in our own Highland Park zoo.

The Pittsburghers, impressed, remarked to each other that our own collection of animals made a sorry showing.

Now at last, however, there is hope for improvement. Council, stirred by complaints about the manner in which the animals are kept, has sent two of its members, John M. Phillips and Clifford B. Connelley, and a city engineer, Nathan Schein, to New York to inspect the Bronx zoo with a view to getting ideas for the improvement of the local zoo.

Mr. Phillips, a nature lover and sportsman, believes private contributions can be obtained, if the city is unable to furnish the money, which will give us a zoo of which we will not be ashamed. Let us hope he is not over sanguine.

It would be better to abandon the zoo than to maintain one that reflects discredit on the city and leads to the suggestion that the Humane Society should interfere.

The Crash in the Love Market

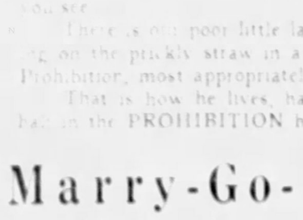
How refreshing to meet now and then [illegible] old-fashioned pair of married lovers who have never heard of the new freedom. Who still [illegible] each other and [illegible] and honor and [illegible] all the quaint old-fashioned [illegible] that [illegible] each discriminating [illegible] modern sophisticate.

* * *

Yes, [illegible] such a pair now and then. But [illegible] most women the love market has fallen lower than the stock market. Women's love and kisses are going cheaper than the bargains in the August [illegible] sales. It's hard to GIVE them away.

* * *

Never in the history of modern civilization have men been so indifferent to women and never before have women been so restless and lonely. Particularly the younger women.



Chatting with a number of eligible young men at a fashionable beach resort, I discovered that each of these men would give almost anything he owned just for a brief respite from the pursuing women. Just to meet a girl who was a little difficult, a little reserved, a little out of reach. Just [illegible] a CHANCE to do his own courting [illegible] the interchange and find romance.

* * *

But [illegible] most men are FED UP with women. Or think they are. All of which makes us wonder [illegible] what the new freedom has profited women.

* * *

I believed and still believe that those pioneer women who raised the cry for the single standard [illegible] higher WOMAN'S standard, the high standard of love, fidelity and loyalty. But it is now MAN'S standard which prevails [illegible] standard at all.

* * *

It is men, not women, who are the natural lovers and [illegible]. Every normal woman wants her MAN—ONE man—who is sure and certain, [illegible] wants a home and a [illegible] love.

* * *

But what a spectacle we see about us. Young girls eagerly accepting [illegible] casual, married women wondering where their husbands are evenings or [illegible] with other women's husbands, all [illegible] matters being dressed by [illegible] restless women [illegible] into marriage and out of it by the [illegible] train to Reno, successful [illegible] women [illegible] alone or [illegible] merely [illegible] husbands.

So THIS is "freedom"! And how MAN is enjoying it.

* * *

But the freedom is all man's. For the feminine heart is never FREE and the feminine desire [illegible] not run to variety but to [illegible]. A woman wants to be [illegible].

* * *

For any girl today be sure that she will ever marry? Or that if she does her marriage will last more than a few weeks? Can any girl know that the man who makes love to her tonight will not be making love to the girl around the corner tomorrow night? Not if I see what I'm looking at.

* * *

When a woman barred [illegible] the modern [illegible] called [illegible] freedom, she handed herself a [illegible]. The love market is in a worse state of chaos today than the stock market. I wonder if [illegible] stock will ever come back?

FRANCE DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

HAVRE, Aug. 10.—We motored leisurely through Normandy today, wet green with a shower one minute and spangling with sunshine the next, stopping again at Rouen for a peek at the gray white cathedral, the world's biggest clock, the Jeanne d'Arc gold-flecked tablet and other ancient wonders.

At Du Clair we lunched on a portico jutting the river and were served by Irene Franklin's double. In tousled French I tried to tell her of her resemblance to the red-headed actress and she replied: "But Madame herself has lunched here and I have served her. Toodle-oo, Irene." Small world.

On a turn of the road between Du Clair and Havre we beheld the airplane carved in natural stone on the hillside as a striking bas relief tribute to Amundsen and his valiant explorers. Havre, about 23 kilometers away, lay muggy in one of its almost chronic mistrals.

I have seen Havre many times but chiefly from a boat train window. Seaports offer a variety of life rarely found inland and Havre is no exception. Its official name is Le Havre de Grace and the fixed population is 135,000 with a floating population, mostly seamen, of 65,000.

It is the port of all French Line ships and recently surpassed Cherbourg as a harbor. About 20 ships daily arrive and depart. A friend in Paris told me to be certain to see its seamen's quarter, known as Chinatown, and I struck out for there first thing.

Chinatown is a hive of squirming streets, a five minute walk from the town's center. Its gayest thoroughfare is Rue Des Galions, lined on either side with what Havre called "licensed houses," bagnios appealing to frenzied lust of sailors and a bedlam of mechanical pianos.

Each brothel has a gaudy front, illuminated at night by dazzling signs heralding "The Hive," "The Black Cat," "Maison Yvonne" and the most notorious of all, "The Crystal Palace." Runners in uniforms stand out front after nightfall with enticing whispers and photographs.

* * *

Branching topsy turvily from des Galions are grisly little streets filled with bars and cheap hotels. One bore the name "Hotel Hoboken" and another "The Port Said." It was early—10 p. m.—but sidewalks were swaggering with bare chested men of lolling gaits, cursing, singing and enjoying the freedom only a sailor enjoys on shore leave. Along nearly all streets women beckoned from windows and panderers along curbs passed out cards advertising this resort and that. All bars carried signs indicating "Rum Chaud" was for sale—the favorite tipple of hard drinking seafarers.

* * *

But Havre is not all vice and hard living. The city is flung upon verdant hills with the placid harbor sparkling at its feet. In opulent times it houses the most celebrated cotton and coffee millionaires of Europe. They reside mostly in a district known as Nice-Havre, magnificent hill side castles, beautifully terraced and featuring enormous gateways of roses. Just now many costly mansions are boarded and "To Sale" signs are numerous. My guide pointed to two elaborate structures whose owners were recent suicides. The world debacle has thus wrought its tragic toll here, too.

* * *

Havre has a most interesting Mystery House on a high peak in the Nice-Havre section. It is a turreted like castle of white and black marble bristling with towers and featuring enormous gardens and artificial lake. It was once occupied by a German baron, a frequent figure in the beautiful Casino nearby. A month before talk of war he suddenly vanished. After the war it was found the house had been stripped of furnishings. Today it is unclaimed and in the hands of caretakers appointed by the city. Many believe the castle was a depot for spies and reposts. The name of the baron, the owner, was found mythical.

* * *

Havre's leading hotel. The Frascati is one of those comic opera continental inns with an enormous and glittering modernistic lobby, the dripping purple of oozing mulberries and, behind the front hen coop rooms with indifferent service. Servants pop out of the radiators. Before going out I asked the concierge to buy a railroad ticket. Upon returning six different minions ran after me crying: "I have your ticket." Too many seemed to "Havre" my ticket. So as a guerdon for their garrulity I canceled the order and bought it at the railroad station. An old Scotch custom.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

She's always discontented.

Ever since she was a child she has been that way. No: her life hasn't been marked by tragedy. She has always had enough to eat and wear, a decent home, kindly friends. But somehow, she could never be quite happy. Always there was that nagging sense of failure and frustration, always discontent spreading its grime over every circumstance.

I suppose it's my disposition," she sighs, "but that doesn't make it any easier to bear. How I envy people who are born contented. They just seem to draw good luck to them. They always have nice things happening to them. If I could only be happy-go-lucky like that . . . if I could only be contented.

And of course she could be contented if she really wanted to. For discontent isn't an inherited handicap . . . we are not "born contented or discontented——"

Discontent is a habit. A deliberate habit from which we can break ourselves as easily as we break any other silly or vicious habit.

How does that habit start? Simply enough. Some trivial childhood hurt . . . the other boy has a better bike . . . the other girl has a prettier dress . . . the other kids live in nicer houses than you do, have parties and you don't. So self-pity and resentment start. Why should you have all the bad breaks? Why should Fate pick on you? And yet they tell you that you should be "contented with your lot" and "count your blessings!" Well you won't! You'll show 'em!

Just for spite. You won't like anything!

And so out of your hurt and envy and resentment comes discontent . . . comes the habit of picking flaws in everything. A queer unhappy habit. What satisfaction can you get out of it? But you do get satisfaction, a sickly secret sense of power. The sense of spiting Fate, spiting society.

Making yourself worn or important by making yourself and everyone you contact miserable.

And yet at any moment you could have dropped that misery—if you had so wished. At any moment you could have been contented, instead of discontented—

For it's entirely up to us whether we're happy or unhappy in this life. We can't help what happens to us but we can help what happens in us.

Two people will meet exactly the same circumstances: one person will be contented, the other discontented. That isn't because the situation seems ideal to the first person. No situation is ever 100 per cent satisfactory to anyone. There's always a flaw, always a reliance to grouch if you're looking for one.

One person will look for that because he has acquired the habit of looking for flaws and grouching about them——

The other person will pass by the flaws and look for the pleasant possibilities, because he has acquired the habit of looking for pleasure.

Does that mean that we should go around grinning like Cheshire cats . . . being a little ray of sunshine when everyone else wants to sit in the shade? It certainly does not. But it does mean that we can make our own terms with life. We can be chronically happy or unhappy, just as we please, despite the shenanigans of Fortune.

And if you personally, don't please to be happy, if you choose to squawk, what then? By all means, go ahead and do as you please. Wallow in gloom if that's your favorite pastime. But don't expect the world to applaud your art.

The Baron and The Beauty

By Claude G. Bowers

We sometimes hear the complaint that communistic Russia maintains as much kingly splendor in her embassies as other nations, and we believe that one ambassadress was so magnificent in her manner of living that she was displaced. But that is part of the training of the race in diplomacy. Russia has always made much of her embassies and legations; and tiercon hangs a tale of interest to me, if not to you, and one never mentioned in print for generations.

Out in Georgetown, on O street, stands a plain but imposing three-story brick house that was for many years the legation of the Russian Czar. When I first knew it it was just the same except that instead of social lions within it was over-run with cats, for the three spinsters that lived within were cat lovers. During the days of Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren it was a great social center, because Baron Bodisco the Russian minister, lived there, spent lavishly on entertainment, played poker with a gay abandon that often meant money in the pockets of Webster, Clay and Fox, the British minister. He was a short and ugly man with a beautiful spirit of good fellowship. His cellars were the best stocked in town. He drove frequently into Washington, of course, and almost always he carried candy for the urchins he met upon the way. Everyone knew the Baron; no one disliked him.

Baron Gives Party For Children

One day some nieces visited him and he gave a child's party for them, the most unique and elaborate the capital had then known. Swings hung in all the doors. The decorations were beautiful, and for favors the children were given kid gloves, imported for the purpose from Paris. One of the children at the party was a young girl of barely 16, then attending a boarding school in Georgetown, the daughter of a governmental clerk. Soon it was observed, with disapproval, that the old Baron, who was more than 50, managed to pass the girl's home about the moment she would start for school. He went along to carry her books. The gossips whispered ugly things about that, ignorantly. They were even more shocked a little later to find an engagement announced. May and November it was not good at all.

The Wedding of Baron Bodisco

The baron determined on a wedding patterned as much as possible after those of the royal household in St. Petersburg. He insisted on designing gowns to be worn by the bridesmaids. The thing that worried him most was the choice of a best man. Of course Fox, the old roue that represented Britain and never rose in daylight, was his closest friend and poker partner, but then there was James Buchanan, a senator then and formerly minister to Russia to be considered. In a quandary, the baron went to Thomas H. Benton. "Easy," said Old Bullion. "Have as many best men as there are bridesmaids." And so it was arranged.

The bridesmaids ranged in age from 13 to 16, from the boarding school. By arrangement these were taken out of school two weeks before the wedding to be trained in walking in long trains without tripping. Their pigtail curls were put up, and they were taught the airs.

At last the wedding day dawned. Martin Van Buren, President and a widower, asked the still winsome Dolly Madison, now a widow living in the house now used as the Cosmos Club on Lafayette Square, to accompany him. Henry Clay agreed to give the bride away. And there they lined up—the little school girls from 13 to 16 and the best men—Buchanan, Fox the Dutch and Prussian ministers, all old men.

After the wedding the bride was driven in a coach with six horses to the legation for a wedding breakfast. It had been planned to have a state dinner in the evening, and the danger was that the little bridesmaids who had been up as late as 9 and 10 o'clock for two weeks, would not be wide enough awake. And so the old Baron had a fine old Russian housekeeper put them all to sleep on beds and couches and later in the afternoon they were awakened and put again into their gorgeous gowns. The dinner was a success, the guests departed, the little girls put their pigtails down again, and their short dresses on, and returned to school.

Baroness Marries an English Officer

And the cynics soon ceased to smile. The Czar increased the baron's allowance for entertainment and the wine cellar surpassed any other to be found. The young baroness was loaded down with gems and fine dresses, and being beautiful by nature, she became one of the most fascinating women in the capital. Children were born, several of them. The young lady was clearly happy and the old baron was walking on air. So it continued for some years, and then the baron died. When he found death near he called his young wife to him to thank her for having made him happy and to say that she was young, with her life before her, and she should marry when she saw fit. They had an impressive funeral in old St. John's Church, still standing on Lafayette square, and not too long afterward the lady married an English officer in the Indian service and sailed away. They buried the baron in the Georgetown cemetery, where Secretary Stanton is buried, and there you may read on a red marble monument all his titles.

The Story with the Happy Ending

I have never heard the story of the intervening generation, but when the crash came in Russia one of the grandchildren of the old Baron and the young bride was in the service of the Czarina, and either a grandchild or child occupied an important post in the royal household. Not long ago the latter was in this country, a courtly old gentleman, and having seen a reference I had made to the story of the wedding, called to say that it was correct and that it was assumed not to be known outside the family. Evidently, he said, it must have been described in some book I had seen. It has been seen in scraps in several. "If there is such a book," he said, "while I have not much money left, I would give a great deal to buy it."

And so the story of the baron and the beauty ends, and ends happily. Never have I been in Georgetown without walking by that old house on O street and thinking of the kindly, courtly old man who, ugly himself, introduced some beauty into the legation of the Russians through a marriage that all predicted would end disastrously.

If there has ever been a more unique marriage ceremony in the capital I have not heard of it, and certainly there has been none that came out more harmoniously.

Russian diplomats have been so accustomed to the best things in life through so many generations it is not remarkable that the habit persists, even under the Communists. Perhaps the proletarial in Moscow do not know about the elegance of their ambassadors, and what they do not know cannot hurt them, or the head of the Foreign Office.

SUMERIAN SCIENCE

By Archibald Henderson

To the archaeologist and the historian of antiquity, there is no civilization or culture more interesting than that of the ancient Sumerians. Four or five thousand years before Christ, there was a country known as Sumer, located in the southern part of Babylonia. The Sumerians are people supposed to have been migrants, who wandered into Babylonia and settled in the southern portion, having drifted there from the east and northeast. The Sumerians, according to Professor Langdon, probably entered Mesopotamia prior to 3000 B. C.

The archaeologists have investigated the remains of an ancient town, Susa in Elam. From the things discovered on this site it appears that the Sumerians knew the use of metals before they came or discovered it soon after their settlement at Susa. The feature of the Sumerians which makes them of especial interest to the historian is their use of writing, which is the earliest known. To the Sumerians is therefore attributed the invention of writing, which was originally pictorial. Certainly the preservation of writing on clay tablets—the earliest "books"—may be traced back for more than 3,000 years before Christ.

The Sumerians realized the value of things, and employed suitable objects for weighing them. In the reign of Entemena, about 3040 B. C., a stone weight employed by the high priest has been discovered and identified. In form it is like a pear, with a deep groove on each side running from the point to the base, and is highly polished. The weight was suspended by means of a round hole found in the top. This object weighs about a pound and a half, and bears the inscription in ancient Sumerian characters which have been deciphered to read: "One mana of wages in wool, Dudu the High-Priest." It is well known that Dudu, high-priest of the god Nin-girsu, was a very important official in the city of Lagash, during the reign of Entemena. The city of Lagash has now been identified as the modern mound Tello. Ur-nina, the oldest historical ruler of Lagash, was the great-grandfather of Entemena.

The Egyptians knew how to make soap chemically, were familiar with dyeing as a chemical process, and also prepared various drugs and emollients. The Sumerians were versed to some extent in metallurgy, chiefly in the use of copper and certain other metals; although unacquainted with bronze.
